THE PATIENT'S PLIGHT

Long Illnesses Bring Poverty

By JEFF GREER
(First of two articles)

Lengthy illnesses are grinding many Marin County families into pauperdom.

Experts say there probably are hundreds of cases in which the patients are elderly persons who have been treated for some time in general hospitals.

But the day comes when the hospital tells the patient he or she must go home or enter a convalescent hospital, although the illness is not over.

Most provident persons carry health insurance for treatment in general hospitals, including surgery and intensive care. But Medicare and most private policies don't cover expenses of nursing care at home nor in a convalescent hospital.

The average convalescent hospital in Marin charges $900 a month for one of its beds, according to county social workers.

Most families don't understand what is happening to them, or why, when a patient loses bed space in a general hospital.

A typical case — if any of the intensely personal, worrisome cases can be called typical — is this:

"My husband can't ever get well," said the wife of a Ross Valley man who had been treated for weeks in a privately owned general hospital, but then was told to go home or enter a convalescent hospital.

"My husband wasn't ready to come home. We had to put him in a convalescent hospital.

"I didn't think much about our insurance; we thought we had plenty" for his slow, terminal illness, the wife said.

But only one of their policies provides anything for convalescent or "extended" care, she found.

"I don't know why a hospital, so long as they're being paid, should object" to a patient continuing to stay, the wife said.

"And it looks like they have plenty of beds. . . "

Hospital and health insurance spokesmen hastened to present another side of the picture.

Many Bay Area hospitals indeed have some empty beds — but under state and federal law must use evaluation or utilization review committees to decide when a patient no longer needs a general hospital bed and care.

The committees are mandatory in any hospital accepting Medicare or Medi-Cal cases, explained Ray K. Bollinger, administrator of Marin General Hospital.

"We could really be censured if we didn't do these reviews," Bollinger said. He added that "95 per cent of the utilization review committee are members of the medical staff," who weigh whether a patient still needs intensive care costing more than $100 a day.

Most general hospitals also have an "extended care committee" including a social worker, a nurse and others — who must work with the ousted patients and their families to ease the crisis.

"This is a very difficult thing for them to understand," explained Joan Panaro, social worker at Marin General. "Many of our elderly patients are on Medicare. . . it will only cover acute cases" but not lengthy convalescent care, she explained.

"Time and again we have to try to interpret insurance rules," she added. She found that few health insurance policies protected the patients against huge bills from long-drawn recuperaton periods outside of general hospitals.

Such policies are available either through the Medicare supplementary program or through group or individual health insurance plans, according to Frances Putnam of Novato, former longtime officer manager for one of California's largest health plans.

But many insurance companies won't sell extended coverage policies to anyone who's already reached retirement age, this reporter was told.

One major firm that sells life, home, auto and other policies has discontinued its health insurance program altogether — "It was catastrophically expensive," a salesman explained.

"You've got to remember, people only get what they pay for," Mrs. Putnam cautioned.

If patients aren't moved out of general hospitals when they no longer need that level of care, "everybody's insurance rates go up," she said.

Both Sides Talk Of Resuming War

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Egyptian infantry supported by tanks carried out four attacks along the Suez cease-fire line today but were beaten back, an Israeli military spokesman reported in Tel Aviv. He said Egypt had fully deployed its troops to attack positions all along the Suez front.

The latest accusation of Egyptian cease-fire violations came as Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger flew to the Middle East on a peace mission and as Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir flew home from Washington with many questions unanswered. Both the Israelis and Egyptians spoke openly of a resumption of the war.

The Arab oil-producing states cut oil production 25 per cent and an official Egyptian government spokesman said in Cairo that an Arab oil embargo would increase until the United States takes an "even-handed" policy in the Middle East. The Arabs have been extremely critical of U.S. military aid to Israel.

Col. Nachman Karni, the Israeli spokesman, said one of the Egyptian attacks today involved a series of infantry assaults that penetrated Israeli lines in the northern Sinai in six hours of fighting, and that tanks moved forward simultaneously before being driven back by Israeli fire.

It was the first time the 40,000-man Egyptian 2nd Army holding the northern sector of the Suez Canal line was involved since the cease-fire began 12 days ago. It carried out three separate attacks while the trapped 3rd Army to the south was involved in a minor clash between a patrol and Israeli troops.

"There is tension in the area," Karni said after a visit to the Canal line. "The Egyptians are fully deployed east and west of the canal and to defend Cairo."

Karni said two Egyptian bodies were found and the Israeli National Radio said seven Egyptians surrendered. No Israeli losses were reported.

State-controlled Egyptian newspapers charged that Israel is planning "aggressive" actions against the Arabs and the semiofficial Al Ahram said the situtions was "explosive" along the cease-fire lines. Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said that Egypt had built up its troops to renew the war.

Diplomatic reports in London said the Soviet Union had resupplied Egypt and Syria to prewar levels and had pledged more up-to-date weapons in the event of a new outbreak of hostilities. The reports said Russia also had sent in Soviet experts to oversee the new buildup.

Saxbe Urged Destroying Nixon Tapes

HONG KONG (UPI)—Sen. William Saxbe, President Nixon's nominee as new U.S. attorney general, said last August in a speech to the American Chamber of Commerce that if presidential tapes incriminated Nixon, "they should be destroyed and I'm sure (Nixon) will."

A reporter for the daily newspaper Hong Kong Standard covered Saxbe's speech to the Chamber and produced a transcript of Saxbe's Aug. 22 remarks today.

According to the transcript, Saxbe told the chamber:

"I think the President is right on standing on his rights not to disclose the tapes. I personally wish I had never heard of the tapes and unless they're incriminating I think he should give them up. If they're incriminating . . . they should be destroyed and I'm sure he will."

(In Washington today, Saxbe released a statement through an aide.

("I don't think I said that. I don't recall saying it," the statement quoted the Ohio Republican as saying. The aide, William Hoiles, who was with Saxbe at the Hong Kong Chamber meeting, said he did not recall the comment either.)

The Washington Post's Hong Kong correspondent, H.D.S. Greenway, who received the transcript from the Standard yesterday, said three other members of the audience also remembered Saxbe's comment. Two considered it as cynical and sarcastic, rather than actually advocating tapes be destroyed.

Ford Sees Nixon Surviving Crisis

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Vice Presidential nominee Gerald R. Ford predicted today at his confirmation hearings that President Nixon would survive the crisis which has led to demands for his resignation or removal, and would complete his term "with a fine record."

But Ford said Nixon still must prove to the American people that he is innocent of any involvement in the Watergate scandal.

"I believe he's completely innocent and there must be documents to prove that," Ford told the Senate Rules Committee hearing on his nomination to succeed Spiro T. Agnew as vice president.

Ford said Nixon should lay those documents before the people. He avoided advising him how to do it, however. Sens. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., and Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., have suggested in recent days that Nixon appear before the Senate Watergate Committee to make his case.

Ford, the House Republican leader, said it would take the help of "many, many people" for Nixon to re-establish public confidence in his presidency. Ford said he would be anxious to help if confirmed as vice president.

He said Nixon's record in office — particularly in foreign policy —has to be "sold better."

He made his remarks in response to a question from a fellow Republican, Sen. Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon, who asked, "Can Richard Nixon save his presidency?"

"I think so," Ford replied. With help, he said, Nixon can convince America of his Watergate innocence and of his excellence and "finish office with a fine record."

Ford said he still finds it hard to believe how much Watergate has hurt Nixon.

"It's just unbelievable how the stupid, illegal acts of a handful of people should have this impact," he said.

Ford also told the senators he "probably" would have resigned as did former Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson if faced with the same circumstances. He said he understood how Richardson felt compelled to leave office after Nixon had special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox fired.

"I assume if I was in that possition I would probably do the same," Ford told Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., who brought the matter up.

Pell said he was pleased with Ford's answers. He said the nominee had "this quality of openness and honesty" which the American people are seeking.

Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., chairman of the Rules Committee, said his mail contains many letters urging that approval of Ford's nomination be delayed until it is known whether Nixon will resign. But Cannon said he opposes such delay.

Richmond-San Rafael Bus Permit Is Asked

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A permit to operate a small bus between San Rafael and Richmond is being sought by a new company.

David McGreevy of San Rafael and Kem Yim Louie of San Francisco, partners in Travelers Transit Co., have applied to the Public Utilities Commission for a certificate of public convenience and necessity to provide the service.

Their application said they would operate one 12-passenger coach Monday through Saturday from 5:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. between the Greyhound stations in both cities.

The run would connect to the Bay Area Rapid Transit District terminal in Richmond.

The bus would leave San Rafael at 5:30 a.m. on its first run, and depart every hour on the half hour until 7:30 p.m. It would depart from Richmond at 6 a.m. and every hour on the hour until 8 p.m.

Travel time was figured at 29 minutes in the application, leaving one minute to unload and load at the end of the run. Baggage service also would be provided.

The application has been assigned for possible hearing to PUC examiner William S. Pilling. He told the Independent-Journal today he will decide within a week whether to conduct a hearing.

Pilling said informal questions by telephone have been raised about the application by the Golden Gate Bridge District, Marin County Transit District and Alameda-Contra Costa County Transit District. The three have been working for almost two years to provide public transit across the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge, but without result so far.

The staffs of the districts have envisioned 20-minute service during peak hours and hourly service during the day, with an annual deficit of up to $70,000.

If a PUC permit were granted to a private operator, the bridge and East Bay districts

High Chance Rains Will Continue

Marin and Southern Sonoma County commuters mostly beat the rainstorm to work today, but optimists who left umbrellas or raincoats at home were almost certain to get wet this evening.

None of Marin County's rain gauges reported more than a trace of moisture by 8 a.m., but heavy rainfall was widespread by midmorning, as the storm arrived from the Pacific Northwest.

Federal weather forecasters said the storm would continue until early tomorrow, bringing snow down to the 4,000-foot level as far south as Lake Tahoe.

After a few hours of clearing, another storm is expected to arrive tomorrow afternoon. The storms resulted from a major change in upper-level air patterns over the northern Pacific Ocean, meteorologists said.

Two brief storms last month brought the 1973-74 season's total to 3.67 inches of rain as of yesterday — more than one inch above average for this early in the winter.

Many Issues Facing Marin County Voters

Marin residents will go to the polls tomorrow to vote on several tax and bond measures and elect directors in 14 special and three school districts.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. till 8 p.m.

Also on the ballot is Governor Ronald Reagan's tax limitation initiative, which has aroused statewide controversy.

Most hotly debated local issue in Marin is Measure E, the Marin Municipal Water District's bond issue which would provide $7.5 million to finance a Russian River water supply project.

Proponents of the measure say Marin will soon need additional water while some opponents claim importing water will lead to greater development in the county.

Also on the ballot are bond proposals, including $4.5 million for flood control in Novato, $850,000 to purchase open space in the Larkspur-Greenbrae-Kentfield area, $500,000 for open space in the Santa Venetia-San Rafael Meadows area and $545,000 in Mill Valley to finance new police quarters.

In Sonoma County, Rohnert Park residents will decide on a $1 million bond issue to acquire open space and voters countywide will consider a 10-cent tax

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Curfew Imposed

SANTIAGO (UPI) — The ruling military junta stepped up army and police patrols last night during a 10-hour curfew on the third anniversary of the inauguration of deposed Marxist President Salvador Allende.

The military government that overthrew Allende Sept. 11 reported perfect calm throughout the day. The 8 p.m.-to-6 a.m. curfew — two hours longer than usual — was moved up because of the anniversary.

Allende, who died in the bloody coup, was cheered by thousands of supporters on Nov. 4 three years ago when he became the first freely elected Marxist leader in the western hemisphere.

Bursts of rifle and automatic weapon fire were heard during curfew hours Saturday night and yesterday morning. Military spokesmen did not explain them, but have previously said soldiers fire shots as warnings to curfew violators.

Armored Battles

SAIGON (UPI) — A column of tank-led Communist troops captured two government outposts yesterday near the Cambodian border, the Saigon command said today, and all 29 men aboard a government transport plane carrying reinforcements to the battlesite died when the aircraft crashed.

The twin battles were the biggest armored clashes since the signing of the Vietnam cease-fire nine months ago. The air crash was the worst in nearly eight months in Vietnam.

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien said there was no word on casualties in the ground fighting. He said he expected they would be heavy on both sides.

Greek Clashes

ATHENS (UPI) — Greek opposition leaders blamed the government today for clashes between police and demonstrators following yesterday's memorial service for late premier George Papandreou.

"I denounce the arrests that took place as the beginning of a new wave of persecution," said former Premier Panayotis Kanellopoulos, who was present at the memorial service.

"Police could and should follow the peaceful marchers and not confront them."

Andreas Papandreou, son of the late premier, said in a telephone interview published in Athens newspapers: "The people's demonstrations ensure the failure of the Pentagon's efforts to impose a new dictatorship on Greece."

Town Recaptured

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — A Cambodian government task force today recaptured the Mekong River town of Prek Luong, four miles north of Phnom Penh, and began moving on other rebel-held riverfront villages, field reporters said.

Prek Luong was captured by the insurgents Nov. 2 when government forces left it lightly defended while going to help a garrison in trouble at Prek Ampil, three-quarters of a mile to the north.

A 1,600-man government force attacked last night and, after steady fighting, captured Prek Luong today.

Hijackers Killed

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet police stormed a Russian airliner on the tarmac of a Moscow airport and killed two of four young men attempting to hijack the plane to Sweden, well placed government sources said yesterday.

The sources said the two other hijackers surrendered during the shootout which capped five hours of negotiations at the airport.

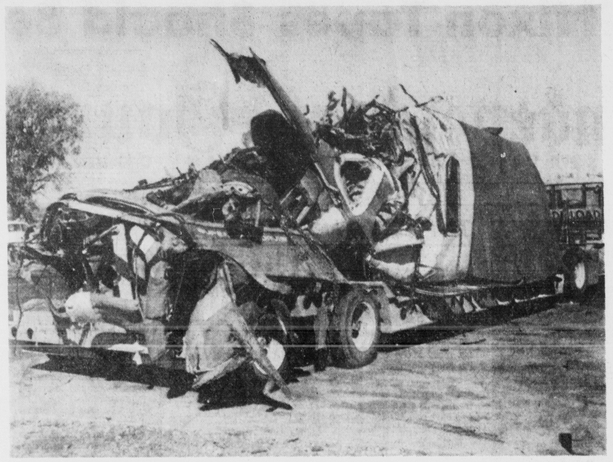
One crewman and one of the 25 passengers were injured.

The Soviet sources said the men threatened to kill all the passengers unless paid a ransom of $500,000 to $1 million and allowed to fly in the three-engine jet to Sweden.

The attempted hijacking took place Friday but did not become known until yesterday.

Hotel Robbery

CHICAGO (UPI) —Burglars took cash and jewelry worth $38,000 from comedian Don Rickles and six other persons in the Ambassador Hotel during the weekend. Rickles was in Chicago for a theater engagement.



BUS WRECKAGE — The remains of a weekend "gambler's special" Greyhound bus rested on a flatbed truck in a Sacramento salvage yard yesterday as investigators attempted to learn why the bus crashed into a freeway pillar on Interstate 80, killing 13 persons and injuring all others aboard, eight of them critically. (UPI Telephoto)

Bus Crash Fatal To 13 Is Probed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —An autopsy has ruled out the possibility that the driver was intoxicated or suffered a heart attack when his "gambler's special" Greyhound bus barrelled into a freeway pillar, killing 13 persons.

The weekend tour bus, filled with 43 Richmond Calif., members of the all-black "Vaiety Swingers" social club hoping for luck at the casinos, crashed while en route from the San Francisco Bay area to the gambling meccas at Reno. All of the passengers were either killed or injured.

Sacramento County Coroner George Nielson yesterday said tests showed the driver, Douglas Moore, 26, of Hayward, was not under the influence of alcohol or drugs and "had an amazingly healthy heart."

National Transportation Safety Board investigators sifted through the rubble today in hopes of finding some clue to the mysterious Saturday night mishap which left seven men and six women dead.

The Greyhound special hit a steel guard rail and "plowed dead center" into a pillar surrounding an overpass on Interstate 80, three miles north of the state capital. The impact split the bus open about one-third of its length and sprayed passengers, seats and parts of the bus over an area the size of a football field.

Nine victims were reported in either serious or critical condition at various hospitals today.

Two motorists who were passed by the bus minutes before the crash said it was travelling between 80 and 100 miles an hour. But a Greyhound spokesman refuted the remarks, saying the bus had a governor on the engine which prevented it from exceeding 67 mph.

Wallace Is Fine After Operation

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Doctors say Gov. George Wallace, paralyzed from the waist down by an assassination attempt last year, is recovering "real, real well" from a minor operation Saturday to improve his bladder functions.

The surgery was a followup to prostate surgery the governor had in January, eight months after being shot and crippled while campaigning in Maryland for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Fund Raiser

AMSTERDAM (UPI) —A weekend art auction hosted by actress Elizabeth Taylor raised $200,000 for widows and orphans of Israelis killed in the 1973 Middle East war.

Quake In Italy

NAPLES (UPI) —A sharp earthquake knifed through a large area of southwestern Italy today, touching off panic in villages surrounding this port city.

Arabs Again Cut Oil Production

KUWAIT (UPI) —Arab oil countries fired another salvo with their "oil weapon" today, ordering a five-fold rise in petroleum cutbacks to pressure the west into opposing Israel in the Middle East conflict.

A statement by the Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries (OAPEC) said the oil producers agreed to raise the 5 per cent cutback announced Oct. 17 to 25 per cent.

The statement said the oil nations would continue cutting production another 5 per cent each month until Israel pulls its troops out of occupied Arab territory and agrees to a "just" solution to the Palestinian refugee problem.

The oil-producing nations said the 25 per cent cutback in production would include reductions caused by the Arabs' total oil embargo on shipments to the United States and Holland for supporting Israel in the war.

The annoucement was made after a meeting in Kuwait of oil ministers from Saudi Arabia, Iraq, Libya, Kuwait, Syria, Egypt, Algeria, Abu Dhabi, Bahrein and Qatar to review the effect of the "oil weapon" on the Middle East situation.

Some of the Arab nations had already increased the 5 per cent cutback rate with Saudi Arabia announcing a reduction of 26.5 per cent.

Development Planned By Rebozo's Nephew

MIAMI (UPI) —Developers of an island in the middle of Miami's harbor hope to win clearance for a $100 million high-rise development on the land once jointly owned by President Nixon and Bebe Rebozo.

Rebozo's nephew, William Rebozo, is the man who has contracted to buy 176 acres of Fisher Island for the high-rises, the Miami Herald reported yesterday.

But even the developers admit that plans for a 13,000-resident community, perhaps one which bans motor vehicles, may be snagged by conservationists' efforts to turn the 241-acre island into a park.

The younger Rebozo was quoted as saying, "if public reaction is not overwhelmingly favorable, we're going to abandon (the idea)," regarding the land once owned by millionaire industrialist sportsman Garr Wood.

The land is now owned by two companies associated with Bebe Rebozo—Fisher Island Inc., and Harbor Terminal Inc.

The Herald said President Nixon sold his 10 per cent interest of shares in the property in 1969 at $2 a share. He had bought most or all of the 185,000 shares of Fisher Island stock for $1 per share.

About 65 acres of the island are owned by the Belcher Oil Co. and the University of Miami.

MARCH FOR PARKS IN TAMALPAIS VALLEY

Beating a banner calling for park development and chanting, "We want parks," Tamalpais Valley youngsters march the seven blocks from Marin and Maple avenues to Tamalpais High School. About 60 young people participated in the march Saturday, some in baseball attire, some twirling batons or carrying drums and other noisemakers. The 40-minute event was to focus attention on tomorrow's election in which development of facilities at Eastwood and Rhubarb parks is the main interest.

Two Sought In Report Of Robbery

Mill Valley police are seeking two men who met a resident outside his home, forced him inside where they tied him up and then took several items from his house.

According to police, Gregory A. Van Pelt, 24, arrived Saturday at 10:30 p.m. at a cottage he rents behind 14 Plymouth Avenue and found the window in his front door broken.

He told police that a white man and a black man suddenly appeared out of the darkness. One was carrying a gun and the other had a large stick, he said.

According to Van Pelt, they forced him inside, tied him up and asked for his money. When he told them he had none, they took his tape recorder, stereo and guitar and slashed some Indian-made rugs.

After they fled, Van Pelt freed himself and called police.

Council To Eye Policy On Bias

Whether groups with discriminating membership clauses in their charters should be allowed to use city facilities will be discussed by the Mill Valley City Council tonight at 8 p.m. at city hall.

Discussions about such a policy began last spring after Jenny Fulle, 10, asked the city to shut the Little League out of its parks because girls cannot play on Little League teams.

Also tonight the council will appoint a citizens committee which is to help screen candidates for the job of city manager.

It will also consider a request for a rate increase from Clearvue Systems, the cable television firm, which wants to raise its monthly service charge from $5 to $6.

Desegregation Appeal Is Refused

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Supreme Court refused today to hear an appeal by a group of white Prince Georges County, Md., parents that a court-ordered school desegregation plan violated their rights as "Anglo-Americans."

The action came in a brief order in which the justices declined to hear arguments in the case which sharply divided the large Washington, D.C., suburb.

In other actions, the Court:

Denied a hearing to a New Orleans woman who unsuccessfully sued to eliminate sex discrimination at the men's grill of a hotel.

Agreed to decide in a Colorado case whether states can set a flat standardized work expense allowance for all recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children. Lower courts ruled the practice was illegal.

Refused to hear the claim of three North Carolina black dentists that they were singled out for temporary license suspensions because of their race.

The Prince Georges County desegregation plan went into effect in January.

The desegregation plan ordered by U.S. District Judge Frank A. Kaufman and upheld by the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals called for the transfer or busing of approximately 33,000 Prince George's students to achieve better racial balance in the school system's 162,000 pupils.

The plan went into effect Jan. 29 after the county school board was refused a stay by the Supreme Court. The Justice Department had joined Prince George's authorities in urging that the postponement be granted.

Chief Judge Clement F. Haynsworth of the 4th Circuit said in a unanimous decision against the school board that the case was "routine."

The white parents subsequently intervened with a class action suit, charging Kaufman's plan benefited 22.4 per cent of the student population which was black but denied the rights and interests of the other 77.6 per cent.

Senior Hot Meals Plan Seeks Money

The Marin Senior Coordinating Council will ask county supervisors tomorrow for $5,500 to help see its newly created hot-meals program through the end of the fiscal year.

The program, called Whistlestop Meals, began operating several months ago at the old San Rafael Railroad Depot and currently provides one nutritious but inexpensive meal per day to about 80 older citizens.

According to Edward T. Ryken, director of the Senior Citizens' Coordinating Council, the group will try to match the county's share, if approved, through private donations.

The money is needed to help pay the kitchen staff, begin providing meals to senior citizens unable to leave their homes, and eventually set up a second location in the county where hot meals can be served.

(Ryken said the second location would serve as a distribution point for meals cooked at the San Rafael kitchen.)

Ryken said the coordinating council first thought of seeking a federal grant but such a grant would require a full-time program director, advisory committee and reams of red tape.

Whereas the council originally contemplated a $15,000 federal grant to run the program, the government's requirements increase the amount to between $25,000 and $60,000, he said.

"We are not saying that the federal program is loaded with gingerbread and not doing an effective job, but, in our case, this kind of expenditure seems to be considerably out of line," Ryken said in a letter to supervisors.

Prison For Segretti In Dirty Tricks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Donald H. Segretti, the mastermind of the political dirty tricks program during President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign, was sentenced to six months in prison today for violating federal election laws.

U.S. District Court Judge Gerhard Gesell, who could have sentenced Segretti to three years in prison, also imposed a three-year probation.

Segretti pleaded guilty Oct. 1 to one count of conspiracy to distribute unlawful political material, and two counts of distributing that material.

Gesell imposed the sentence after Segretti, his voice subdued and broken, asked to be put on probation.

"I really regret I got involved in illegal activity," Segretti said. "It's been a real nightmare. I would like to become a productive citizen."

Segretti, 32, a lawyer from California, was given one week "to get your situation in shape" before beginning his sentence.

Earlier Segretti's lawyer, Victor Sherman, had proposed that Segretti be placed on probation and required to perform some type of public service work, similar to that given to conscientious objectors in Selective Service cases.

"He's probably been punished more than anyone else in this case," Sherman said. "He has five dollars to his name, debts of $10,000, is unable to obtain employment and it has been just fantastic punishment just to live with the name Segretti."

Segal Resigns From Yale Post

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Erich Segal, author of the highly successful book "Love Story," has resigned as a Yale University associate professor of classics.

Segal's resignation, effective last June 30, was revealed in a list released by the school over the weekend.

Segal failed to gain tenure at Yale after a controversy 3½ years ago. He had been offered a senior lectureship in 1972 as a move considered a compromise allowing him to continue outside activities precipitated by his book's success without the added duties of a tenured position.

Probation Set In Drugs Case

A 19-year-old Petaluman has been placed on a year's probation for possession of a chunk of hashish.

Judge David R. Baty of Marin Municipal Court ordered the case of Ronald Gregory Andrews diverted from criminal proceedings.

Andrews was arrested June 12 after Novato police said they found the hashish in a patrol car in which the youth was taken to jail for booking on a traffic warrant.

Air Force Reservists Plan Flights

Two Air Force Reserve flying units, one stationed at Hamilton Air Force Base, will be flying low-level weekend training missions over Northern California, Brig. Gen. William G. Hathaway, commander of the 452nd Tactical Airlift Wing, reported today.

Reservists in the 904th Tactical Airlift Group at Hamilton and the 349th Tactical Airlift Group at McClellan Air Force Base, Sacramento, will fly missions in the C-130 Hercules, a four-engine, turbo-prop aircraft, Hathaway said.

Training will consist of low-altitude missions, short-field landing practice, formation flights and air drops of cargo and paratroops.

The routes in Northern California include a leg over San Pablo Bay from Vallejo to Hamilton Air Force Base and then northward, east of Novato, toward the Napa area.

British Fear Irish Offensive

BELFAST (UPI) — British officers said today the escape of three Irish Republican Army leaders from a Dublin prison last week might spark a new IRA offensive in Northern Ireland.

"This escape was bitterly disappointing, a real setback for us and likely to lead to a step-up in IRA operations in the North," a British officer said.

The escaped trio included Seamus Twomey, the one-time chief of staff of the extremist provisional wing of the IRA. The other men were Joe O'Hagan and Kevin Mallon, two veteran provisional leaders.

"We expect one or more of them will return to Belfast to build up the provisional organization here we have hurt so badly in recent months," another officer said.

Sentencing Set In Burglary Case

A Woodacre woman convicted in Marin Superior Court of burglarizing a home in that community is due to be sentenced Nov. 19.

A jury in the court of Judge E. Warren McGuire Friday found Judy Soga, 20, guilty of taking items from the Kenneth D. Peterson home on Conifer Way.

A San Rafael man alleged to have helped Miss Soga in the burglary, Thomas Wade Ayers, 21, is awaiting a preliminary hearing in Marin Municipal Court.

Mrs. Bonnie Peterson testified during the trial she returned home the afternoon of Aug. 22 to find Miss Soga and Ayers carrying a television set and tape recorder down her front walk to a waiting car.

Reserve Shelf Policy On Tap

The Fairfax School District board will consider a policy for placing books on the reserve shelves of school libraries when it meets at 7:45 p.m. tomorrow at White Hill School.

Trustees want to set up ground rules and criteria for reserve status, as well as determine how available reserved books will be, according to the district administration.

Examination of district "reserve shelf" policy was sparked by a recent uproar over "Go Ask Alice," a tale of teen-age drug use, which was placed on the White Hill School library reserve list after complaints by parents.

Holland Satisfied

Patrick Holland, who has withdrawn as candidate for the Bolinas Community Public Utility District board, gave as his reason that he is "now satisfied" with board's handling of cost issues. The report of his withdrawal in Saturday's Independent-Journal made it appear he had said he is "not satisfied."

Hunt For Cousin Ends In Arrest

CHICAGO (UPI) — A man went looking for his cousin in the Austin District police station yesterday morning, and ended up being arrested on armed robbery charges.

Police said William Lacey entered the station looking for Terry Rice, his cousin.

Andrew Fulbright, 27, a freelance photographer who had shot Lacey's cousin to death earlier in the morning, was in the station when Lacey entered, police said.

"He's the other guy," Fulbright said, pointing to Lacey.

Authorities said Rice, 26, and Lacey, 22, allegedly tried to rob Fulbright in a parking lot with a gun. But Fulbright drew a .22-caliber automatic pistol from a camera case on his car seat, and shot Rice in the chest, police said.

SOME CHANGE — The woman walking with a dog in Woudenberg, Holland, had to contend with the traffic (top) before a weekend ban on nonessential driving went into effect. It was a different story yesterday, however, as she crossed a clear street. Holland has imposed a weekend ban on driving in the face of the Arab oil boycott. (UPI Telephoto)

Holland's Roads Almost Empty During Pleasure Driving Ban

THE HAGUE (UPI) —The children liked it best of all, flocking onto the near empty highways to play. Auto thieves, however, had their problems. Police said the only man to steal a car was quickly spotted and picked up.

Dutchmen walked, pedaled, took buses or just stayed home yesterday during a ban on nonessential driving ordered by the government because of the Arab boycott on oil shipments to Holland.

The streets of Amsterdam, Rotterdam and The Hague were virtually empty of private automobiles and replaced by an assortment of conveyances such as bicycles, horses and skates.

Police reported only 18 drivers arrested by nightfall for violating the ban. Authorities said their cars were impounded and magistrates were expected to levy heavy fines.

The Ministry of Economics issued 20,000 exemptions to persons pleading special need, but police said the few cars on the road mainly belonged to foreign diplomats and engineers who were exempt from the ban.

The driving ban went into effect yesterday for the first time following the decision of eight Arab countries to halt oil shipments to Holland because of Dutch support of Israel during the 1973 Middle East war.

Police said the driving ban might have cut down auto accidents, but didn't put an end to highway mishaps. In Rotterdam, five of 15 passengers were injured when a horse pulling a wagon bolted and the carriage flipped over.

Youngsters in Amsterdam managed to pick up a little extra change by offering their bicycles as taxis. Authorities reported a 50 per cent increase in addition to the rise in bikes and horses.

Nixon Signs Bill Giving More Money To Amtrak

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Citing the need for greater rail passenger service because of the nationwide fuel shortage, President Nixon has signed a bill giving the Amtrak passenger train corporation, more money and freedom from government control.

Nixon signed the bill Saturday despite objections from transportation secretary Claude S. Brinegar. Amtrak will get $134.3 million, $107.3 million in new money and $47 million left over from 1972.

Brinegar recommended the President veto the measure because it gave Amtrak too much control over its own budget and gave the Interstate Commerce Commission greater power over actual operations.

Nixon said while he had reservations about some provisions of the measure, fuel shortage had made rail transportation even more vital.

"Railroads can carry more passengers over greater distances per gallon of fuel than automobiles or airlines are able to do while adding fewer pollutants to our air," he said.

"With our oil resources becoming increasingly precious, not just this winter but for some years ahead, the energy efficiency of rail travel is an especially compelling argument for expansion of appropriate federal assistance of Amtrak."

The new law prevents Amtrak from eliminating any passenger trains before next summer, requires at least one experimental service every year, prohibits conflict of interest by board members and requires that at least three consumers be appointed to the board.

Strikes Hit Airline, Hospital

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

An airline, a newspaper and 48 New York hospitals were hit by strikes today, and the epidemic threatened to spread to two big-city fire departments and the world's largest automaker. A strike ended at another newspaper.

A look at the labor picture:

Trans World Airlines cancelled all 421 scheduled domestic flights through Tuesday as 5,000 flight attendants walked off their jobs after 17 months without a contract.

About one third of Milwaukee's firemen called in sick with "red flu" Sunday and Wisconsin Gov. Patrick J. Lucey ordered some 400 National Guardsmen on duty.

Job security was the major issue as editorial and advertising members of the Newspaper Guild of New York struck the New York Daily News.

Printers at the Washington Post agreed to return to work today, ending a wildcat strike that began Friday and prevented publication of the paper's Saturday and Sunday editions.

Defying a court order, 36,000 members of the Drug and Hospital Workers Union left jobs at 48 New York hospitals over the Cost of Living Council's delay of a 7.5 per cent wage increase negotiated four months ago.

New York City firemen, demanding a $2,000-a-year pay raise, broke off negotiations with the city on grounds its latest offer was "totally unacceptable." A union spokesman said they would walk out at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday.

In Detroit, General Motors faced a Nov. 19 walkout by the United Auto Workers union, determined to win the same concessions granted recently by Ford and Chrysler.

No Trace Found Of Passenger Sucked Out Of Window Of Jet

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) —National Guard pilots circling the mountainous wilderness of central New Mexico have found part of a National Airlines DC10 engine, but no trace of a man sucked through the window of the jetliner.

Searchers were ordered back to the northern fringe of the Gila Wilderness today to look for the body of G. F. Gardner of Beaumont, Tex., pulled from the plane following an explosion during a flight from Houston to Las Vegas, Nev., and San Francisco.

"I still think it's a very slim chance the body will be found," Sgt. Al Whitehouse of the New Mexico state police said.

A jet engine on the plane, which carried 116 passengers and a crew of 12, disintegrated Saturday night and tossed chunks of metal into the fuselage. A window was smashed, the cabin was decompressed and, despite the efforts of passengers who vainly tried to hold onto Gardner, the machinist on his way to a job in Singapore, was pulled from the plane.

A 200-pound engine casing from the plane was spotted last night by pilots in National Guard helicopters. But Whitehouse said the discovery may or may not be a clue to finding Gardner's body.

He said he would talk to National Airlines officials today to try and determine how long Gardner was stuck in the window before his body was sucked out at 39,000 feet.

"It depends on how far the plane travelled while he was in the window," Whitehouse said. "If they can get some idea as to how long the body was held in the plane before

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

They Laughed When He Sat Down, But. . .

(The following editorial appeared on this page last Feb. 23. As it predicted, Governor Reagan's plan to put a ceiling on state spending got nowhere in the legislature, but easily qualified as an initiative measure. It will be on tomorrow's ballot as Proposition 1.)

They laughed when he sat down at the piano. . .

The people in New York, and Illinois, and all those other states thought it was delightfully funny when the voters of California elected a movie actor as governor.

Of course, they wouldn't do anything so foolish. In New York, they stuck to Nelson Rockefeller, a rich man who had made politics his life — a real professional, no mere playactor. In Illinois, they liked a governor named Otto Kerner, a former judge and district attorney who rose from captain to major general in World War II.

"Those Californians!" said the people of New York and Illinois and those other states, with knowing winks.

WELL, RONALD REAGAN had a lot to learn when he parked himself in the governor's chair. And he didn't like the script they handed him. But, like a real trouper, he kept up the act.

That was six years ago. Ronald Reagan has learned. And now he's rewritten the script.

This month, he began briefing legislators and newspaper people about his plan to put a lid on California governmental spending — permanently.

It isn't a plan he dreamed up between acts. It was prepared by a committee of top economists, working with a task force headed by Lewis K. Uhler and Charles Hobbs, the governor's assistants.

And there never has been anything like it proposed before.

BASICALLY, Governor Reagan proposes to tie state government spending to the total income of California's people, on a percentage basis.

His proposed budget for next fiscal year would take about 8.75 per cent of all the money Californians earn. He proposes that be reduced year by year until it reaches 7.15 per cent. Then that would remain the limit, permanently.

A two-thirds vote by the legislature would be required to increase any state tax rate — whether sales tax, income tax, gasoline tax, or whatever. No more of this switching the tax from one pocket to another and then boasting about "reform."

Local property taxes would be held at the limits set by last year's Senate Bill 90.

The result would be that Californians would know what to expect in the way of taxation. And they'd know it couldn't get out of hand.

REAGAN'S PLAN would require a state constitutional amendment. It is not given much chance in the legislature. The lawmakers like to be free to spend money — our money, that is. The limits Reagan proposes would be "like trying to take the credit card away from your wife," as state Sen. H. L. Richardson, R-Arcadia, commented.

But Reagan says that if the legislature won't go along, he'll sponsor an initiative campaign to get the amendment on the ballot. And that should have less trouble. The people are tired of having their money spent carelessly in Sacramento.

Reagan's plan is complicated. It may be flawed. But it makes sense.

Meantime, the best Nelson Rockefeller has been able to think up for New York taxpayers is to lobby Washington for handouts. As for Otto Kerner — well, he wound up in jail.

They laughed when he sat down at the piano.

But when he began to play. . .

(Moral: Vote "yes" tomorrow on Proposition 1.)

PAUL E. PETERZELL

Here's Candidate Who Wrote His Platform 18 Years Ago

Every candidate for public office likes to claim his environmental credential is greener than everyone else's on the political block, but none is likely to come up with one as green as the one held by George J. Silvestri Jr.

The deputy Marin County counsel, seeking the Democratic nomination for Assembly next year, made environmental news in the Independent-Journal way back in 1955 — when he was a 13-year-old at St. Raphael's Elementary School in San Rafael.

He and two fellow eighth grade students were out to stop subdivision construction in Black Canyon above the Dominican area of San Rafael. Their aim, the I-J reported then, was to "save the natural beauty, deer havens and waterfalls."

YOUNG GEORGE and his friends gathered several hundred signatures of property owners in the city and called on radio stations, newspapers and conservation groups in their appeal to save the area for a park.

The boys said they complained to their parents about the bulldozing, and were told to do something about it themselves if they felt so strongly about it. Silvestri would say his new campaign springs from the same conviction to do something — this time about the sorry state of government.

As he said then, "some told us we might get our toes stepped on, but it's worth a try." Silvestri told the I-J the canyon was a source of constant marvel to the exploring boy who goes out hiking, taking pictures, picknicking or camping.

The 700-acre subdivision should be on flat land, not natural hills and forested land, he argued. "They tell us that progress means increasing home tracts," 13-year-old Silvestri declared. He added that "if homes increase, then there should be more parks and recreational area for them."

Surely no one could suggest he was building a campaign platform in 1955 when he was 13 (he will be 32 tomorrow), but it sure comes in handy now.

VISITORS TO ALCATRAZ may be perplexed to find the federal eagle over the main entrance faces left — opposite the traditional direction. An explanation was offered to us by Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District.

Federal eagles did face left until the presidency of Harry S Truman, Mailliard said, but switched to the right after Truman read somewhere that facing left was cowardly. The Alcatraz eagle, of course, was perched on its roost well before Truman was president.

A recent tour of the island park included the son of a former assistant warden of the now decrepit prison. It was a nice touch that he is in the burglary alarm business.

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

The most illiterate man who is touched with devotion, and uses frequent exercises of it, contracts a certain greatness of mind, mingled with a noble simplicity, that raises him above others of the same conditions. — Samuel Johnson.

President Nixon Far Above His Detractors

It has been said that "the hottest places in Hell are reserved for those people who, in times of great moral crisis, maintain their silence." Not wishing one of those spots for myself, let me put myself firmly on the record: I voted for Richard Nixon in 1960, 1968 and 1972. If it were constitutionally possible, I would vote for him in 1976. I believe that, like President Truman, President Nixon will live to see himself recognized as one of the greatest modern day presidents we have had and that also like Truman, he has the guts to wait for history to make its judgment long after the generally uninformed masses and pseudo intellectuals have gone on to spit their spiteful little venom at whatever target they can next use to vent their personal frustrations.

President Nixon is not perfect, just head and shoulders above the alternatives presently available. I suggest the easily stirred mobs save their shouting for the Super Bowl, or any other activity that requires only reaction and little thought. Let's let the man have enough breathing room to do the job he was elected to do. We should be helping him build this country, not building the 1974 candidates' positions at the expense of our country and the world.

Irate Taxpayers Not Against Growth

The Irate Taxpayers of Marin are amazed and dismayed to discover that this organization has been listed in an ad which appeared in the I-J on Nov. 1, attributed (in very fine print) to the "Committee To Save Marin" (whoever they may be!) . . . This ploy was also used by a group known as "the Plot To Save Marin" in 1971 in the campaign against the Sonoma-Marin Aqueduct.

ITM is unanimously opposed to Measure E but our reasons for opposition have nothing to do with population control. We oppose Measure E because: (1) it is really just the second stage of the Sonoma-Marin Aqueduct which we helped to defeat 9-1 two years ago . . . (2) the MMWD board is assuming planning functions which legally belong to the county and cities of Marin by using water as a means to control population influx and land use; (3) insufficient efforts have been made by the district to reclaim millions of gallons of flood waters flowing each winter into the bays and to recycle present water supplies. Our strongest reason to oppose Measure E is that it gives control of the source of our future water supplies to the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors, sitting as the Sonoma Water Board, whom the voters of Marin can neither elect, recall or control

'Rip-off' By New Breed Barber Reported

For years my sons have enjoyed the freedom of walking to the neighborhood barber shop for a haircut. The local barber shop is on a central street in Tamalpais Valley. The shop was owned and operated by an older man who welcomed the children as customers. Apparently, however, recently our friendly barber sold his business.

Last week I sent my 12-year-old son with $4 to get his hair cut. As planned, later I drove by to pick him up. He stood outside the barber shop looking quite troubled as he explained: "When I asked the new barber how much my haircut would cost, he said $3.50. But when he finished, I gave him my $4 and he would not give me my change." In disbelief, I parked my car and went into the shop. The first sight was a surprise. The red, white and blue colors had been replaced with black and brown and skins and furs and a general jungle type atmosphere. The young barber, new businessman, stood by his chair. I expounded on what my son had told me. The barber replied that he normally charges $8 for a haircut. Doesn't matter, my son responded, you told me $3.50. The barber then appeared to laugh the entire matter off not even willing to refund the 50 cents.

Oh yes, I could have called the sheriff. Robbery is robbery whether it be 50 cents or $50. But I choose to expose this businessman to the public through the newspaper. It is such a small incident but an important one that my son will carry with him into a new generation of lawmakers and lawbreakers. Let's hear it for justice.

Canceled Bus Service Should Be Replaced

Since the bus service has been eliminated from the Harbor Estate, Villa Real, Bayside Acres, Country Club, Glenwood and Peacock Gap areas, I think it is about time for the residents to be heard. Since the squeaky wheel seems to get the grease, do as I did — phone or write the transit director and request that this service be resumed. Where did I get — nowhere — but I think it might work if the demand was as great as the need.

First, the former schedule afforded nothing in the way of helpful transportation — 9:10 until 3:25 p.m. School children had already been driven to their schools; shopowners and workers in downtown S. R. had already parked their cars in areas that could better serve shoppers; commuters had already arrived in S.F. The same held true in returning home in the evening. In my call to the director of our transit system I suggested a schedule of 6 a.m. until 9 a.m., resuming again at 2:30 p.m. to 6:30; a like number of hours, but better serving the heavily populated areas to Peacock Gap.

Take a look at your new tax bill and you'll see an item "Transit District" — and since we are paying for a transit system in taxes, plus a fare, it seems only logical that San Rafael should provide bus service. This should have the attention of parents, school children, workers, commuters, shoppers and all who have need of transportation, and do away with so many cars on San Pedro Road.

Keeping Out Of Mideast 'Yielding To Blackmail'

Perhaps Mr. Leach's suggestion (Oct. 23) as to printing the Pledge of Allegiance is good. But it should be accompanied by an explanation of the obligations — and restrictions — on what a citizen of the United States may do. Citizenship can be lost if you serve in the armed forces of another nation, although none of the U.S. citizens who fought in the Canadian Air Force before we entered WW II were so punished, or criticized.

The Constitution and other laws place no restriction on the right of U.S. citizens to support any reasonable cause, be it by donation of money or by personal service. And the Jews — and non-Jews — who have come to Israel's aid by offering their service are performing civilian duties.

Rather than meekly yield to the blackmail of the Arabian oil states, let us study the alternatives. Perhaps we should insist that American oil companies operating in the North Sea sell the product of these oil fields in the U.S.? Perhaps we should wear sweaters indoors so that we can set our thermostats at 68 instead of 72? But we must never allow ourselves to be panicked by blackmail to desert a people fighting for their lives.

'White-Collar' Crime Begins To Draw Greater Attention

THE RISE OF WHITE-COLLAR CRIME. It is little publicized, but law enforcement officers are centering more than ever on embezzlement, price-fixing, antitrust and tax evasion.

The fact is that the economic losses from these crimes are far greater than from property crimes like burglary, larceny and auto theft.

Tax fraud cases mounted 33 per cent in 1973 over 1972. The FBI reports an 84 per cent increase in the number of persons arrested for fraud and embezzlement during the past 12 years — from 31,000 in 1960 to 57,000 in 1972.

SHOULD THE CRIME VICTIM BE COMPENSATED? The criminal may often be punished but his victim takes most of the losses.

The trend is toward compensation. Ten states now have laws which pay the victims of violent crimes for personal injuries and loss of earnings. Federal legislation is in the making. The Senate has five times passed bills under which victims would receive up to $40,000 for uninsured medical costs and earnings losses. In case of murder, otherwise uncompensated survivors would receive $50,000.

The basis for such compensation is that the government is held partly responsible for crime through lack of protection.

PROSPECTS FOR ARAB-ISRAELI SETTLEMENT. There were no direct negotiations at any time since the end of the Six-Day War in 1967. Both sides now accept direct negotiations, and the United States and the Soviet Union are shepherding them to the conference table.

The elements which could make negotiations productive are visible. The Egyptians have again seen that they can't win by war; the Israelis are beginning to realize that they cannot indefinitely sustain a condition of no-war-no-peace.

A settlement will take time, but it is within reach.

U.S. FOREIGN TRADE BOOMING. The trade surplus rose $873 last month, more than in any month since 1965. The outlook is that U.S. trade will register a sizable surplus for the entire year — a dramatic improvement over the $6 billion deficit of 1972.

The biggest source of the nation's adverse balance of payments is no longer a trade deficit but a tourist deficit. The tourist deficit amounted to $3 billion last year. But here improvement is also taking place. The dollar devaluation makes it less costly for foreigners to come to the United States and they are beginning to come in increasing numbers.

HOW CONGRESSMEN GROSSLY ABUSE FRANKING. One single fact tells the story. Common Cause has found that during the three-month period of congressional campaigns, members of Congress send nearly twice as much free mail to their consituents as during other periods — 112 million pieces from July on as against 67 million pieces normally.

The Post Office has given up trying to enforce the franking laws and that makes wholesale abuse all the easier.

The worst unfairness: Franked mail is massively used to help incumbent congressmen get elected, but is denied to candidates challenging them.

Why not abolish franking during elections?

BLACKS ON WHITE CAMPUSES. College administrators report. Many dominantly white colleges and universities are experiencing a lowered enrollment by blacks and other minority-group freshmen.

The presence of blacks on white campuses usually does not promote racial integration. It heightens black consciousness and black separatism.

There is a marked decline of interest among black students in black study courses. Example: The course in "The Negro in American History" at George Washington University had 176 students last year, only 24 this year.

Detente Has Little To Do With Whether Russia Fights

WASHINGTON — Not to overdo the language of diplomacy, nevertheless there is beaucoup naivete in the current worrying out loud about Soviet-American detente. Will it collapse because of the purported superpower confrontation in the Middle East? Is it permissible under the rules to flaunt your airborne divisions, aircraft carriers and missile squadrons at each other and still have a detente?

That depends on what detente is, and what it is not. For general purposes, it is just what the big Webster's says: "A slackening or relaxing, as of strained relations between nations" — and no more than that. That broad definition applies nicely to the Soviet-American example, but in this case the footnotes about what it is not are the most important part.

A RELAXATION of tensions brings a relaxation of rhetoric. It brings co-operation on cultural affairs and trade, where that is mutually profitable. It allows the American taxpayer to be stung by a colossal wheat deal with the Russians, and removes from the proscribed list many products that could not be sold to them in years past. It implies that the two sides will stop being unnecessarily nasty to each other. All this facilitates agreements — sometimes meaningful, more often merely symbolic — on weighty matters like arms.

It does not — and this is where the naivete comes in — it emphatically does not mean the two sides start trusting each other. It does not mean they will make any agreements that matter without insisting on a tit for every tat, that they will sign away anything of value without insisting on ironbound guarantees. They will do business with each other, but in the same spirit in which the New York Yankees will do business henceforth with Charles O. Finley.

Neither side is about to give up its ideology or its historic goals. Each sees detente as a convenient revision of the rules by which it will move in the same direction it was heading before. Perhaps the United States is not committed anymore to overthrowing communism everywhere, but it is committed to supporting at least the status quo everywhere possible, and especially to defending the bases of its commerce. Perhaps the Soviet Union is not trumpeting the challenges of Lenin so loudly these days, but only because its current leaders believe they can prevail in peaceful competition.

And, as neither side has changed its fundamental beliefs, so it remains consistent, despite detente, in where it draws the geographical line around its vital interests. Experience shows that the Kremlin has been even more predictable than Washington in this. Attention to precedent would have obviated much of the excitement over Russian military intentions in the Suez, and at other points in recent history where direct Russian reaction was feared.

THE ESSENCE of power diplomacy is to keep your opponent guessing, of course, so to take anything for granted can be mortally dangerous. But if modern history teaches anything, it is that the Soviet Union carefully graduates its response to provocation.

It is free with words; the slightest threat to one of its allies can produce warnings of horrible consequences. At the next level, it also is free with munitions, wherever it can advance its geopolitical interests by providing arms for someone else to fight with, it will hasten to do so. It will supply them even at high cost where the stakes also are high, as in Indochina or the Middle East.

But at the ultimate level, precedent says Moscow is not about to make an overt commitment of its own forces until its immediate fiefdom is physically menaced. For a generation, that has meant the Soviet Union itself plus the buffers it created after World War II. That is why Russian tanks rolled in Hungary, East Germany and Czechoslovakia — and why my colleague's predictions of holocaust after the mining of North Vietnam's harbors last year were so wrong.

It also is why the dropping of Russian paratroopers along the Suez Canal last month was extremely unlikely — unlikely not because of detente but because the Kremlin does not order its own forces into essentially offensive action beyond its established vital interests. That policy was rooted deep before detente came along and can be expected to control events whether detente collapses or survives any individual crisis.0120

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Nov. 5, 1963

Paul M. Meredith, AWOL airman wanted in Marin and Sonoma counties on charges of kidnaping, armed robbery, attempted rape, assault with a deadly weapon and bail jumping, was captured by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Youngstown, Ohio.

With 45 men on San Quentin Prison's Death Row awaiting execution dates, Gov. Edmund G. Brown claimed that, in effect, "cruel punishment has been repealed by the courts."

20 YEARS AGO

Nov. 5, 1953

A six-foot-high cross was burned on a hillside above Marin City, resembling the burning crosses used as warnings by the Ku Klux Klan in the South.

Retired Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer said American troops should be withdrawn from South Korea and defense of the country left up to its own people.

COUNTRY PARSON

"Modesty comes easy to those of us who have done nothing worth bragging about."

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By ERIK INGRAM

Eight Powerful County Officials Have Jobs On Line Next June

Eight elected Marin County officials — who collectively receive $212,124 per year and oversee some 342 employees — will be up for re-election next June.

The only reason for mentioning it now is because too little attention (electionwise) is paid these eight officials who can wield tremendous influence in the operation of county government.

The sheriff, among his responsibilities, decides when, where and in what force his deputies will patrol. (Don't believe all the stuff that he's completely at the mercy of the supervisors' fiscal powers).

The district attorney decides what cases should be prosecuted and the severity of the charges.

The court system functions on the administrative competence of the county clerk. The auditor-controller is the watchdog of your dollars.

The coroner investigates deaths and his findings can result in a quiet funeral or an intense police probe.

The assessor determines what areas will be reappraised and the uniformity of those reappraisals. The treasurer-tax collector handles and invests your money.

The county recorder safeguards documents and records which serve as the legal basis for determining land ownership and fiscal responsibility.

THESE ARE JUST a few examples of the public trust they hold. With election less than a year away some appear more vulnerable than others but possible contenders seem few and far between.

A quick rundown of the incumbents shows:

—ASSESSOR — Bert W. Broemmel receives $28,476 per year and oversees 60 employees. His honesty and administrative talents make him very hard to beat, in the view of Marin politicians.

—AUDITOR-CONTROLLER — Michael Mitchell receives $28,476 and oversees 25 employees. Runs a tight ship and is politician 365 days a year. A strong supporter of the public's right to know.

CORONER — Dr. Donovan O. Cooke receives $17,196 for the part-time position and oversees seven employees. His administrative skills led to his appointment by county supervisors to also head the county health department, but administrative problems led in part to his resignation from that post.

COUNTY CLERK — George H. Gross receives $26,904 and oversees 36 employees. His office is in the process of modernizing its filing syste, which probably should have been done some time ago. His successful election track record will probably keep challengers away.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY — Bruce B. Bales receives $33,204 and oversees 30 employees. He is perhaps the most vulnerable of the eight, since questions arise about his judgement in deciding which cases to prosecute.

RECORDER — Noel T. Giacomini receives $22,488 and oversees 10 employees. He is likeable, low-profile and runs a smooth office.

SHERIFF — Louis P. Mountanos receives $28,476 and oversees 158 employees. Some sparks of dissention have appeared recently over administrative procedures and decisions affecting assignments and hours of deputies. But he, too, is a year-around politician.

TREASURER-TAX COLLECTOR — Stanley J. Fontez receives $26,904 and oversees 16 employees. His position is being eyed by at least one city official who claims he can do a better job investing the county's money.

Filing will open next Feb. 11 and close March 8. The election will be held June 4, with a runoff Nov. 5 in any contest in which no candidate receives a majority of all votes cast in the primary.

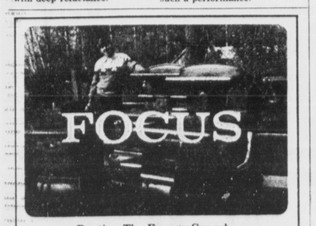
Time Magazine Calls On President To Step Down

NEW YORK (UPI) —Time magazine today called for President Nixon to resign, claiming in the first editorial in its 50-year history that he has lost "his moral authority, the confidence of most of the country, and therefore his ability to govern effectively."

In a two-page article bordered by a brooding photograph of the President, the magazine said, "The most important decision of Richard Nixon's remarkable career is before him: whether he will give up the presidency rather than do further damage to his country."

Noting that the editors of Time Inc. endorsed Nixon's election bids in 1960, 1968 and 1972, in Time's sister magazine, Life, the editorial said they decided to call for resignation "with deep reluctance."

"The question that once seemed so important—Did the President know about the cover-up?—was always somewhat beside the point," Time said. "Whatever he knew or did not know, he must be held accountable for the actions of his top aides and the standards he established... it was almost impossible from the start to answer it in the President's favor: the men involved were too close to him to make his ignorance plausible; after initial indignant denials, each of his later explanations gradually admitted more knowledge, thereby conceding each previous explanation to have been at least partly false. One cannot think of any organization, public or private—including some dictatorships—where a Chief Executive could survive in office after such a performance."



Beating The Energy Crunch

Some people, worried about possible fuel oil shortages this winter, are buying antique wood-burning stoves. If you lack the space or the inclination to get one, here are some other things you might try in order to stretch your fuel supplies this winter: Weatherstrip and caulk around windows and doors. Install storm windows or insulating glass. Have your furnace checked to make sure it is operating at peak efficiency. Set your thermostat as low as you can. Close draperies at night during cold weather. Check your insulation. Close all openings into the attic.

DO YOU KNOW — Who is the President's energy adviser?

FRIDAY'S ANSWER — Dewey's running mate was Earl Warren, later U.S. Chief Justice.

BOATING BUDDIES

President Richard Nixon (right) and friends C. G. (Bebe) Rebozo (center) and Robert Abplanalp seemed a little miffed at being discovered by press photographers as the trio took off Saturday for a day aboard Rebozo's houseboat at Key Biscayne, Fla.

Meat Wrappers Disease Studied

CHICAGO (UPI) —A study released today indicated butchers and workers who wrap precut, pre-packaged meats with plastic may be exposed to a new disease —"meat-wrappers asthma."

William N. Sokol of Yossef Aelony and Gilden N. Beall of Harbor General Hospital, Torrance, Calif., said the illness was triggered by fumes released when workers cut the plastic wrapper with a hot wire. The report was published in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The study said the disease causes shortness of breath, coughing and wheezing and apparently disappears when the worker is not exposed to the fumes.

Three middle-aged women workers developed respiratory problems, the report said, when exposed to fumes of polyvinyl chloride cut with a hot wire. It was pointed out the three women were cigarette smokers and might have inhaled the fumes while smoking.

The first transcontinental airmail was flown from San Francisco to New York in February, 1921, in 33 hours, 30 minutes.

The 450 SE Sedan.
This is the car that may finally prompt you to invest in a Mercedes-Benz.

The Mercedes-Benz 450SE: already called "the best sedan in the world."

IT'S ONLY HUMAN. You see a Mercedes-Benz go by and think to yourself, "one of these days..."

Now comes the 450SE ...a sedan so fresh in its concepts, so enlightened in its craftsmanship that it exceeds your wildest dreams. Read what the 450SE offers. Then test drive it. You may wait no longer to buy your first Mercedes-Benz.

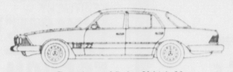
The 450SE couldn't have arrived at a better time.

Concerns with exhaust emissions, safety and energy utilization have forced changes in automotive engineering. With the 450SE, Mercedes-Benz offers a car that has a social conscience—and is fun to drive.

The 450SE's technological advances were not lost on the experts. "The best sedan in the world," says Road & Track magazine. Autoweek considers it "certainly the most exciting sedan in the world... so far ahead of its time it leaves us stunned..."

Smooth, efficient power

The 450SE is powered by a 4.5-liter, overhead cam V-8 with electronic fuel injection. There's nothing like it in any other sedan.



Experimental Safety Vehicle 22, progenitor of the production 450SE Sedan.

This unique engine gives you better than 25% more power per cubic inch and better fuel economy than any domestic luxury car. The 450SE uses about four gallons where any top line domestic sedan would use at least five.

Sculptured by the wind

There is a good reason why Mercedes-Benz engineers shape their automobiles differently.

Try a 450SE in the rain. You'll be amazed at how clear the glass area remains. The window molding catches water and grime as they come off the windshield—before they have a chance to foul the side glass. The molding also puts the airstream to work, guiding it across the windows to further sweep them clean. The rear glass is cleared by the same principles.

Suspension better than ever

Considering the Mercedes-Benz reputation for handling, that is quite a statement. Nevertheless, it is true.

The front suspension on the 450SE is a direct lesson from our 180-mph experimental C-111 Coupe. Zero steering offset gives this latest Mercedes-Benz remarkable straight-line stability. And this full 5-passenger sedan can negotiate a circle only 37.5 feet in diameter.

The fully independent rear suspension is exactly like that of the famous 450SL sports car. The system has lost nothing in its transference to the 450SE. Say good-bye to wallowing suspensions and mushy controls when you take command of this car.

Strength above and beyond

The 450SE is the strongest sedan Mercedes-Benz has ever built.

It has the most rigid passenger compartment of any Mercedes-Benz production car. The front and rear extremities of the car were designed around this "passenger cell." They deform on impact, absorbing as much force as possible before it reaches the cockpit area.

This body is treated to a series of baths, coatings and paintings that take the better part of a day to complete. In all, every 450SE is layered with more than 30 pounds of protective coating and more than 40 pounds of paint.

The safest sedan?

Mercedes-Benz would never say that. But the experts at Autoweek had no qualms. They saw the close relationship that the production 450SE has with our latest experimental safety vehicle, ESV 22. They called the 450SE "the safest car in the world available to the public."

Mercedes-Benz has long been an innovator of safety developments. The "safety cone" locks which secure our doors received their first patent in Germany in 1949. The crushable extremity/rigid passenger cell idea was granted its patent in 1952.

These are just a few of the elements which promote passive safety. They were developed to help minimize injury if an accident is unavoidable.

Active safety endeavors to help keep you out of accidents in the first place. Responsive handling, excellent braking and agile maneuverability are all essential elements.

Take braking. The 450SE has a fade-resistant disc brake for every wheel—4-wheel disc brakes. A feature Mercedes-Benz introduced on all its models 6 years ago.

There's more. Driver environment. A subtle and vital driving consideration. Location of controls, seating design, ventilation, even the width of the steering wheel are carefully considered in a multi-faceted attack on driver fatigue. Because the fresher you are, the better use you can make of the controls at your disposal.

No automobile manufacturer anywhere in the world is more concerned with safety. No one else has been more active in making it a part of his product for as long a time.

Invitation:

Mercedes-Benz has always aimed to build not just successful cars, but significant cars. That has been achieved in the 450SE. What awaits you now is the most remarkable driving experience of your life. Phone us today. We'll be happy to arrange a test drive.

GARY ADAMSON
Weds 'Lolita' star

Actress And Slayer Wed In Colorado Prison Rite

CANON CITY, Colo. (UPI) — Actress Sue Lyon married convicted murderer Gary (Cotton) Adamson in a 15-minute "nice, quiet wedding" last night. The bride spent her wedding night in a motel room. The bridegroom slept in his jail cell.

The double-ring ceremony was performed in a gold-carpeted conference room at the Colorado State Penitentiary in the presence of nine other inmates, Adamson's mother and five sisters, and penitentiary officials.

Reporters and photographers agreed to stay out of the room after Warden Gordon Heggie told them Adamson, serving a 20-to-40-year term for second-degree murder and aggravated robbery, made a "serious threat to react" if newsmen were present.

"It was a very nice, quiet wedding," said Mrs. Lucille Adamson, the convict's mother, after the ceremony. "But it had a very sad ending."

The bride, wearing a full-length dress of beige Belgian lace and a white veil, and the bridegroom, dressed in dark blue suit, fed each other pieces of a four-tier wedding cake at a 45-minute reception. Guests were served soda pop.

Prison officials said Miss Lyon's 20-month-old daughter by a previous marriage sprinkled red rose petals around the room prior to the ceremony, performed by the Rev. Paul Leaming of the United Methodist Church in Canon City.

The bride and her party entered the prison earlier in the evening and passed single-file through a metal-detecting device. Miss Lyon carried a small purse and a white Bible.

A minor flareup occurred when UPI photographer Joe Marquette asked persons accompanying Miss Lyon to move away so he could take pictures.

"I'm gonna get physical," Miss Lyon shouted, grabbing Marquette's sleeve. "This is a wedding, not a circus." At a press conference earlier yesterday, the actress criticized the news media for sensationalizing her wedding.

"I'll do anything I can to stop you from attending the wedding —legally, financially, emotionally and in every other way to stop anything you can do, ever," Miss Lyon screamed at newsmen. "If you take one picture of my wedding, I will not only sue you, I will physically have you harmed. That's what you're doing to me."

Warden Heggie said Colorado law made no provision for conjugal visits and that no exceptions would be made for Miss Lyon because of her star status.

The actress, who soared to fame at the age of 14 with her portrayal of the nymphet in "Lolita," said she and Adamson will work for conjugal visits in the state.

"I shall be staying in Canon City and visiting Cotton whenever I can," she said. "One of the things we shall be doing together is to press for conjugal visiting in state and federal institutions. We are joint chairmen of the committee for family visitation.

"I can assure you that we shall be the first ones to avail ourselves of a conjugal visit law when it is passed through the state legislature."

Honorary Degree For Rex Harrison

BOSTON (UPI) —Actor Rex Harrison will receive an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree from the Boston University School of Fine and Applied Arts Friday.

Harrison will be cited for his award-winning portrayal of Henry Higgins in the stage and screen productions of "My Fair Lady" and "scores of other memorable characters in his nearly 50 years as an actor," the university said yesterday.

Grain Crop Predictions Are Doubted

MOSCOW (UPI) —Western experts said today they were viewing with some skepticism Leonid I. Brezhnev's prediction of a record 215 million-ton grain crop in the Soviet Union this year.

The Communist Party general secretary made his prediction in a recent speech to the World Congress of Peace Forces in Moscow.

The figure he gave is well above the Soviet goal of 197.4 million metric tons.

"They obviously are having a record crop," one Western expert said. "But it will be quite a bit less than 215 million tons when they get down to what they can actually eat."

The experts said the grain crop, when first weighed, includes a considerable amount of dirt and weeds. They also said moisture content should be much higher than average this year, owing to heavy rains in August and September when the crop was being harvested.

Further, the experts said some of the grain will not be of sufficient quality to be used for human consumption. However, they said it could be used for livestock feed.

Even allowing for all these factors, the experts acknowledge that the Soviet crop achievement this year is quite significant, especially in view of the 1972 disaster.

The 1972 harvest was only 168 million tons, nearly 30 million below target. The Soviets bought $1.8 billion worth of grain abroad.

WATER

Who would have thought we'd have to take sides on water?

But we do.

And it's a big issue here in Marin. Except it really shouldn't be that much of an issue.

Either you have enough water or you don't.

And we don't.

It has nothing to do with development or more population, or conservationists vs. conservationists.

It is simply that we in Marin are now using 2 billion gallons of water more than we take in, each year.

Measure E replaces this shortage and allows us to keep a safe reserve.

So we ask you to take sides on water, and vote for it.

On November 6—Vote Yes on E.

He is the author of five books on learning and education, including "How Children Fail" and "How Children Learn." He is writing another book, tentatively titled "Learning vs. Education."

Holt will discuss his belief that the modern custom of shutting off the young from adult life and society, denying them the possibility of acting independently and responsibly in the world and keeping them in a prolonged state of subservuiency and dependency, is a mistake and a root cause of many serious problems.

He has appeared on the "Today Show", "Dick Cavett Show," "David Frost Show" and other network programs and had articles published in most major magazines.

The members have worked throughout the year to make articles for the event, which has been held annually for over 100 years.

A luncheon will be held at noon and again at 1 p.m., and sherry will be served. Child care will be provided during the festival hours.

Luncheon reservations chairmen are Mmes. Alan Hill, Martha Conrow and Miss Florence Langbein, all of San Rafael.

Earlier this year she was the soloist in a production of "The Creation" given by the Winifred Baker Chorale in San Francisco. The singer holds Bachelor of arts degrees in English and Music from the University of Montana and the master's degree in music from Dominican College. She teaches voice in Dominican College's Music Department.

OUT OF THE BOUDOIR

Hostess Gowns Bridge Gap

By PHILLIS FELDKAMP
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK — The walls between the loungewear and evening clothes departments in the stores have been noticeably crumbling.

To wear a garment sold as a hostess gown when one is a dinner guest at somebody else's house is not in the least uncommon and — considering the similarity of styles and the difference in price — is often an economically sound idea.

John Kloss, the designer who brought nightclothes out of the boudoir, found numbers of women taking his advice more literally than he had envisaged. A short while back a reporter for a Detroit newspaper won a national award for having written, "I Wore My Nightgown to a Party," based on her personal experience.

Her experiment proved how easy it could be to dress up a black nylon jersey Kloss nightie with a belt and gold ropes and chains and pass oneself off as a candidate for the best-dressed list. Not only did nobody find her out, she was covered with compliments all evening. Afterward women throughout the United States followed her lead.

All this considered, one would not have expected the new "lingerie look" to cause more than a ripple of interest. In fact, though, lace-trimmed slip dresses that closely resemble underclothes, and slip-top dresses have been sending out minor shock waves in fashion and retailing circles.

SOME OF the high-powered designers who are using the lingerie look for dance and evening dresses are Chester Weinberg and Geoffrey Beene. Oscar de la Renta shows silk crepe nightshirts which, being covered up, do not rate as undie-inspired fashions.

Clovis Ruffin's jersey slip dress sells for $36, and you can buy a similar black nylon jersey lace-trimmed slip in the lingerie department for $6. But Ruffin doubts that you could get away with wearing the real slip solo.

His dress, he points out, is not shiny like the true slip and has special details such as a little zipper and straps of piping instead of ribbon ones with metal adjustable attachments.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Her Former One And Only Now Has Himself A New Girlfriend

DEAR HELEN:
I've been true to this fellow for seven years. Up until two years ago, I thought I was the only one in his life. Then he started seeing a girl about 10 years younger than he is. They make no secret of being lovers.

Tom and I hardly ever go anywhere together any more, but when I tell him I'm going to leave him he throws a fit. If I show interest in another man, he gets furious. He knows I'd do anything for him, so I guess he just expects me to stick around while he makes up his mind. I love him and don't want to lose him, but how long must I wait? — MMT.

DEAR M.:
You've waited much too long already! Tell Tom that while he's "making up his mind," you're changing yours — and get back in circulation again. — H.

DEAR HELEN:
Do you think women really have more intuition than men?

I'd like to think I excel in one area, but with all these male-female stereotypes being discarded, maybe my "intuition" is just as phony as saying "men can think straighter." Anyway, I can read my husband's mind, and he doesn't give me any clues either. — STRONG, SILENT MAN'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE:
Perhaps women are more intuitive because they've had so much practice reading the minds of strong, silent men — which almost every man imagines himself to be, especially with his wife.

Seriously, I think intuition is about three-fourths "concern" for people whose lives are in one's care. Because a woman is often more involved than her husband with family management, she's tuned to "feel when things are going wrong — even before she's told.

There's nothing like responsibility for developing a sixth sense, right? — H.

DEAR HELEN:
This letter of thanks is long overdue. I wanted to write when the Betty Crocker coupons first started pouring in, but was too busy tending to my bulging mail box.

Anyway, the power of the press amazes me. I was really awed that one small letter in a syndicated column could foster so much interest.

Thanks to your kind readers, the Tay Sachs program at Harbor General Hospital has received tremendous impetus. Our sincere thanks to everyone who sent those thousands of coupons to B'nai B'rith of Southview No. 1103. They are being used for a very worthy cause — the research and treatment for a disease that attacks many children. — Jeanette Ray, 514 South Francisca Ave., Redondo Beach, California, 90277.

NOTE TO READERS: More Betty Crocker coupons are needed here. If you have extras, please send them to the above address. — H.

DEAR HELEN:
I am the wife of a registered pharmacist and therefore concerned about people shopping around for the cheapest drugs. It's true some pharmacies charge more than others, but they may have higher overhead, offer better service, and stock better grades of drugs.

People who shop for the cheapest drug run the chance of dangerous drug interaction, for they may have prescriptions at several stores, and the druggists aren't aware of what other medicines they are taking.

I'd say: shop for a pharmacy and stay with it, but not for price alone. Your druggist could save your life, so choose him wisely. — L.B.

NOTE FROM H: But choose one who doesn't charge $12.95 for a brand named drug available elsewhere for $7.00! — H.

Volunteers Are Needed By Teacher

Forest Meadows Development Center teacher Judy Roberts has an urgent need for volunteer aides in her class for 9 to 20 year old mentally retarded students.

The need is greatest between 11:15 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Men and women of all ages are eligible and no special training is required.

Of the nine students, four are able to feed themselves.

"Lunch time has become a real problem. I have one aide and an EMR (educable mentally retarded) student to help feed five. It's hard because we are trying to teach them to use a fork," Judy Roberts said.

Without enough help she is being forced to lower the standards in the class to accomodate the slower students, she explained.

Volunteers with special skills, such as carpentry, would be helpful, she said.

"A realistic attitude is more important than special training," she said.

Persons interested in the volunteer program should contact the school.

MONEY MATTERS

New Bumpers Stylish, But Work

(EIDTOR'S NOTE — This column has been written by the Monitor automotive editor for "Money Matters" columnist Joseph Ripley, who is on vacation.)

By CHARLES E. DOLE
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

DETROIT — See those automobile bumpers on the '74-model cars just now moving into the traffic stream?

Not bad, eh?

But hink back a few years to when the federal government first decided to impose some restrictions on bumper design and announced its intention to make them practical once more.

Automakers let up a scream that could be heard from coast to coast and reached into every garage in the country.

Yet, despite all the noise, automakers have come up with some excellent designs which shouldn't offend the good taste of anyone who buys a 1974-model automobile.

The new bumpers are required this year to meet a five-mile-an-hour impact, both front and rear, without any damage at all to safety-related components, meaning lights, steering, fuel tank — anything that can impinge on the safe operation of the vehicle itself. Beyond this, every car has to meet pendulum test which assures that no 1974 bumper can override or underride the bumper of another 1974-model car.

IN 1976, the law calls for a 30-degree corner impact, both front and rear and on both sides, without damage to safety-related components. There now is legislation in Congress to modify the bumpers again in 1977 so that there is no damage at all, including not even a paint scratch, at 5 miles an hour. Car buyers and insurance companies are bound to save a lot of money over the years.

But beefing up the bumpers on a car isn't as simple as it sounds. When you add more weight to the front and rear of a car, you affect the handling and steering characteristics of the car as well as the structural integrity of the vehicle itself.

"It's the worst part of a car for us to be putting on weight," declares Eugene Bordilnat, vice president of design for Ford Motor Co. "It's all cantilevered out there and it's hard sometimes to get hood-shake and fender-shake out of a car."

WHEN THE car designer adds a couple hundred pounds in those critical areas of a car, he has to enforce other things. He has to put added structure into the vehicle, beef up other components of the car, maybe go up a size in tires, increase the brakes, and on and on.

The bumper system itself is only part of the picture.

The Chevrolet Vega, for example, has five-mile bumpers front and rear. Until this year it was exempt. The General Motors division tore up the front end completely, redesigned it, and reworked the rear end as well. As a result, the cost of the Vega is going up an average $150, compared with $25 for the full-size Chevrolet cars.

Ford Motor Co. uses a higher-cost bumper system on its brand-new Mustang II than it does on the rest of the line.

General Motors, in fact, had to redesign its whole bumper line for 1974 because its '73 bumpers were intended to meet a barrier crash only. It was gambling that the pendulum test would never see the light of day.

In order to meet the barrier test in 1973, Chrysler Corp., among other things, put rubber devices on the bumpers which did some of the absorbing. Major changes were required for 1974.

NEW BUMPERS are expensive. "It used to cost us about $1 million to do a new bumper," explained the Ford styling vice president. "Now," he said, "it costs $4 million. That's $8 a car.

"You can chew up $40 million in a hurry that way." The practical bumpers of the earlier years of the automobile were gone and almost forgotten before the federal government got into the act and decreed that bumpers were required to be just that.

They had a job to do — and they clearly weren't doing it.

A slight parking-lot-type bump could cause heavy damage to a car's front or rear end and cost many hundreds of dollars to repair.

"NO QUESTION," responded Bordilnat, "we had overtrained when the bumpers were being integrated into the sheet metal a few years ago.

"They weren't bumpers. We really never even thought of them as such but more as antenna for parking. They were really never designed to absorb any energy at all.

"I think we probably earned the criticism that we got."

The 1974 bumpers clearly show what the designers can do when given a job. The bumpers are stylish, do not detract from the overall context of the car, and, beyond all else, they work.

Store Goes To Customer

MIDDLETOWN, N.Y. (UPI) — — In an age when bargain-hunting has practically become an obsession among money-short families, a young businessman here is trying to cut his overhead and, at the same time, get to the customer before the buyer gets to the store.

David McCarey cruises the neighborhoods in a 28-foot van which is actually a men's clothing-store-on wheels. Earlier this year he bought and converted the former mobile banking office and installed clothing racks, stereo and even air conditioning.

But McCarey thinks the best part of the venture is the prices he can offer, since he buys directly from the New York City "garment district" and eliminated the middleman. The prices on suits, for example, range from $45 to $59.

"It's the first men's clothing business of its kind on the Eastern Seaboard," McCarey said.

Computer And Leisure Time

NEW YORK (UPD — Computers have helped launch space ships, build bridges, look for dates or mates, write music and books. Now, they can even help find something to do with all the time people saved by using them.

A new computerized approach to the problem of coordinating leisure time with avocational activities was unveiled recently by Lawrence Hartlage, psychologist.

He told the annual meeting of the American Psychological Association that an avocational matching program can be viewed as an aid in elevating employee morale by helping make leisure hours more productive and satisfying.

Fire Attitude Said All Wrong

NEW YORK (UPI) — America's attitude toward fire safety is one of ignorance and indifference, an attitude remarkably out of phase with normal reaction to a severe social-medical property problem.

The American Insurance Association, which says so, adds: Congress, recognizing this national aberration, authorized in 1968 formation of the National Commission on Fire Prevention and Control.

The commission became operational in 1971 and has come to the conclusion that a change of emphasis from fire suppression to fire prevention would lead to a 50 per cent reduction in deaths, injuries and property losses within a generation. Fire suppression means firemen fighting a fire.

Woes Of The Women Of Bangladesh

By CYNTHIA A. STEVENS

DACCA, Bangladesh (UPI) — Draped in traditional saris and elaborate jewelery, the war-affected women of Bangladesh appeared one by one before the National Board of Women's Rehabilitation and told about themselves.

The rich colors of their clothing camouflaged their personal tragedies only temporarily. Distressed, tearful and agonized, each face revealed the sufferings of the last couple of years.

A widow accompanied by a malnourished 2-year-old described how Pakistani soldiers had pulled her husband off a bus and shot him in a nearby field. Now there was no one to support the family.

HER HOPE, like all the others who came recently to be interviewed by the board, was to receive some vocational training so that she could provide an income.

The board was established in February, 1972, primarily to organize mass abortion procedures for women who had been raped by Pakistani troops during the 1971 war. Aided by doctors from Inte'national Planned Parenthood, more than 2,000 pregnancies were terminated under this program.

Afterwards, the board undertook a project to rehabilitate violated women, as well as those who had been seriously affected by the war economically. Since traditionally less than one per cent of the female population is experienced in professional labor, the establishment of vocational training courses was the first step.

Before the war when their husbands were alive, 75 per cent of the women were living at a subsistence level, said a board spokesman. Now, he said, the majority of them are living below that level.

BY THE Board's definition, women considered to be "war-affected" are representative of every economic class and number in the millions.

Any woman who was raped by the Pakistanis or is a without-a husband qualifies for vocational training. In the latter case, she is eligible if her husband was killed, physically tortured or is still stranded in Pakistan.

Because Bangladesh is overwhelmingly dependent upon agriculture, those whose property was destroyed during the war also receive priority for training.

Since approximately 90 per cent of Bangladeshi women are illiterate, a main focus of the board program is adult education. Women who have had some education are trained in secretarial courses or in mechanical skills. More than 50 students who have progressed beyond the eighth year in school are enrolled in a newly established Polytechnic Institute, where they are learning to assemble and repair machines.

Those who have no place to live stay at the Board-Centers. According to officials, this occurs in less than three per cent of all cases. Contrary to many reports, officials said that almost all the violated women were accepted back into their families after abortions.

Children Enter The Elizabethan Age

By GLORIA EAGAN

"Ladies and Gentleman today is the 23rd of April, 1573."

With these words Shakespearian actor John Brebner transported his audience, some 450 rapt students at Don Timoteo School ampitheater in Terra Linda back to the pageantry of the Elizabethan Theater.

Waiting in searing sunshine and clad in velvet and mail were processional members.

In line was St. George in his first suit of armor and holding his sword high; the dragon, a grinning horned beast with eight legs belonging to four sixth graders; the villianous Turkish knight crowned in a jewel-studded turban, the chiffon-veiled Sabara, daughter of the King of Egypt and of course, William Shakespeare, played by Lisa Cane.

They were all members of John Grantz's class and were taking part in an impromptu "St. George and the Dragon."

In less than an hour the pair had performed the near-miracle of taking 29 boisterous kids, 11 and 12 years old, and effortlessly plunging them into roles for the medieval summer's play. The audience responded with ear-shattering "huzzas" (Elizabethian for "right on") and villian-curdling hisses.

Teacher Grantz admitted that the day before some of his students had threatened to stay at home with an epidemic of butterflies-in-the-stomach. However, they all showed up.

The apprehension disappeared when Brebner and Sheridan, customed in tights, velvet skirts and plumed hats, walked through the classroom door.

They toted a wardrobe trunk crammed full of Elizabethan finery borrowed from the Renaissance Pleasure Faire company.

In booming voices spiked with Shakespearian authority, they instantly set up a rapport and with the children. A spirit of fun prevailed.

"All right players, here are your hornbooks," said Sheridan holding up a wooden hand paddle to which was attached a sheet of paper with the lines the character would read for the part. No memorization was asked.

"Who will play the part of the villian?" Sheridan asked, adding, "it can be a boy or a girl."

A forest of arms waved amid cries of "pick me."

Volunteers then stood before their classmates, read from the hornbooks and were selected on the basis of who elicited the loudest applause.

Brebner fished through the wardrobe trunk and presented the appropriate costume as players were cast.

The directors give instructions to set the mood.

"Sabara, remember you have to give a little dance. We need some bumps and grinds . . . swing your hips," said Sheridan as he slithered.

"Villian, really act mean. I want you to go down there and point your sword at the kids in the first row — really scare them," he said.

Players ran through one rehearsal of parts. The knights practiced sparring while the dragon waited impatiently. Muffled cries of, "it's hot in here," were heard.

As the audience sat down on wooden benches, Sheridan gave last minute orders.

Brebner strode on stage, followed by "the prologue" a girl carrying a hornbook. While he introduced his audience to the nuances of the Era of Queen Elizabeth I, the processional began a dramatic march around the ampitheater. The mummer's band provided the sounds of trumpet, cymbals and drums.

All went smoothly. Players read with animation.

The dragon did go amok when the head feel dead on the stage floor and the body walked in the opposite direction, but the mix-up proved to be the high point of hilarity in the play.

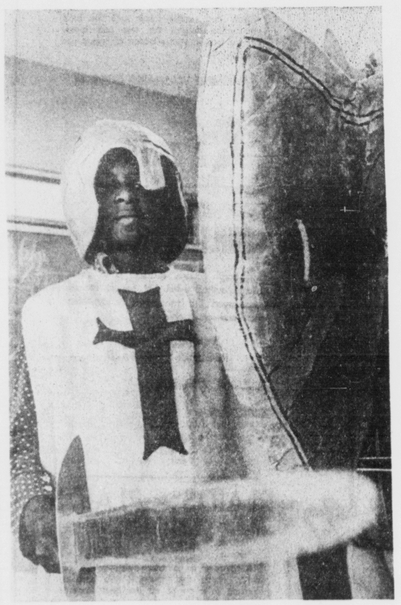
Watching from the sidelines teacher Grantz glowed with pride. "They are having one hell of a time," he said.

Another onlooker, Valerie Simpson, swished her long blond hair and said, "I wish I was one grade higher, then I could be in the play."

Brebner packed up the costumes in preparation for another performance scheduled for later at the Marinwood Community Center after demonstrating once again that "all the world's a stage."

For former Marin Shakespeare Festival actors Brebner and Phillip Sheridan, a two-man touring duo who travel the school and community club circuit, it was a performance they have enacted more than 60 times.

"But we never get bored," said Brebner, a graduate of the Old Vic Theater School in London and former actor with the San Francisco Players Guild.



PROUD — Philip Neyland looks suitably regal as he prepares to do battle in a quickly whipped up version of "St. George and the Dragon," which provides entertainment for actors and audience alike.

COME ON — A grinning dragon with eight legs belonging to four sixth graders from Don Timoteo School is led along by actor Phillip Sheridan. At one point the dragon's head and body fell apart unexpectedly, but the disaster turned into high comedy.

LIKE THIS — A bad case of the giggles seems to have engulfed young actress Erin Ferguson as John Brebner places on her head the crowning touch of her costume. Lots of fun for both actors and audience was the theme of the day.

HUZZA — John Brebner (left) elicits a slight smile from a couple of actors as he holds aloft a hand paddle calling for cheers during a high moment of "St. George and the Dragon," which was a great success for the young actors and audience.

DRAMA — Actor John Brebner gestures boldly with a knife in his hand at the start of an outdoor Shakespeare production, quickly whipped up Brebner and fellow actor Phillip Sheridan at a Marin school. The two men often put on such performances in schools and clubs.

FAREWELL ROMEO — Kris Lagle as the despondent Juliet plunges a dagger in her chest as Ed Embrey as Romeo lies, apparently dead. Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet" will be presented by Novato High School students Friday, Saturday and Nov. 16 and 17 at 8:30 p.m. at the school.

OVER WATERGATE

President Lost Popularity Fast

By ROBERT J. TAYLOR

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One year ago, a seemingly confident and very much in charge Richard Nixon outlined a second term program of open government dedicated to internal reform that would regenerate a spirit of national greatness.

Permissiveness and a government that promised more than could be delivered had brought the nation to "a very great spiritual crisis" in the late 1960s, as he saw it.

But a leaner government that asked more of its citizens would nurture "a new spirit of independence, self-reliance, pride, that I sense in the American people," Nixon said.

Nixon could justifiably be positive about his intentions and commanding in his sense of leadership in that Nov. 5 interview.

His $60 million re-election campaign was at an end with polls showing a landslide victory in store — a mandate to conduct government his way that could not be denied. He enjoyed the editorial support of over 70 per cent of the nation's newspapers.

The polls were right. Two days later he received the greatest presidential electoral plurality in history, a sweep of every state but one, a percentage vote just a hair below the all-time record.

In the only poll that really counts, Nixon found his leadership approved by better than 61 per cent of the American voters.

The victory was impressive, but from Nixon's perspective not perfect. He did not carry either house of Congress. His party lost a governorship. And Republican National Chairman Bob Dole, suggested it was a Nixon victory, but not a party win.

Nixon promised on the 1972 election eve: "We are going to continue to play a great role in the world because that is the only way you can have the peace we talk about."

And he pledged that by boosting the forces of law and order, appointing stricter judges, he would deal with problems such as crimes and drugs that "came as a result of those of us who basically have a responsibility of leadership not recognizing that above everything else you must not weaken a people's character."

Further, he would trim a "bloated" bureaucracy he said was "too big" and "too expensive." "Massive handouts" to the people would stop, Nixon promised.

Nixon retired to Camp David in the fall and reshuffled if not actually reduced the top echelon bureaucracy. He ended American involvement in the Vietnam War, partially by renewed massive bombing of North Vietnam. The prisoners of war came home. A legislative program bearing his intentions to reduce or discard a host of federal social programs was prepared for Congress.

His midwinter mandate, as measured by opinion polls, was 68 per cent — a near record high for any President.

And then came Watergate.

In short order the nearly dormant scandal over the June, 1972, burglary and bugging of Democratic National Headquarters flamed into charges of complicity in high White House circles and a million dollar cover-up.

Nixon was forced to dismiss his closest associates.

The Senate Watergate hearings began. Questions were raised about government expenditures on improvements of Nixon properties. The special Watergate prosecutor eyed illegal campaign contributions from milk men and others. Nixon's two-time running mate, Spiro T. Agnew, pleaded no contest to income tax evasion in October and resigned.

On Aug. 17, public approval of Nixon's conduct of office, measured by a poll, stood at 38 per cent. A study by Congressional Quarterly disclosed that while Nixon was able to keep Congress from running away from him, there had been deep erosion of support among usually dependable Republicans. Legislation by veto increased. It was easier to get one-third support against overriding a veto than majority support for the President's own program.

Nixon was forced again and again to explain and defend his role in Watergate. The court fight over his secret Watergate tapes went on. There was the firing of the special prosecutor; the necessity of giving in; the two missing tapes.

Yesterday, the Gallup poll reported popular support for Nixon in mid-October stood at just 27 per cent. Sixty per cent of the public disapproved.

Also, the New York Times joined a growing list of newspapers calling for Nixon's resignation.

Red Troops Are Said No Threat

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Pentagon said today that up to 2,000 Soviet marines in ships designed for over-the-beach landings are stationed in the Mediterranean. But a spokesman said there was no cause for alarm.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said yesterday there were Soviet marines in the Mediterranean. In response, Pentagon spokesman William Beecher said the Russians normally have two landing ships in the Mediterranean, but now have eight which could carry from 200 to 2,000 marines or naval infantry.

"This is not viewed with unusual alarm," Beecher said. "They are not a substantial number if you're talking about a militarily significant force."

The United States regularly stations one ship in the Mediterranean carrying a marine landing force of 1,800 men. A second ship with another 1,800 men was rushed to the Mediterranean after the Middle East war began.

As evidence of lessened tensions in the area, Beecher announced that US Air Force planes with American markings and crews had flown into Egypt yesterday for the first time in recent memory, and that both Soviet and American ships on alert in the Mediterranean have pulled into ports for visits.

"If you have a tense, everybody - leaning-over-the-rail situation, you don't make port calls," Beecher said. There are two other American carriers still steaming in the Mediterranean.

Hunt Papers Said Destroyed By Dean

WASHINGTON (UPI) —John W. Dean III said recently that he discovered and destroyed materials from the White House safe of E. Howard Hunt Jr. late in January after Hunt pleaded guilty to the Watergate bugging, federal prosecutors said today.

Richard Ben-Veniste, a lawyer for the Watergate special prosecution force, said Dean told government investigators Friday that he shredded two of Hunt's notebooks and tossed a "pop-up address book" into a wastebasket.

The disclosure came amid intensified attacks on President Nixon and questions about his ability to continue governing.

Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., called yesterday for Nixon's resignation, saying "there is no question that President Nixon has lost his effectiveness as the leader of this country." Brooke, who supported Nixon in 1968 and 1972, was the first Republican senator to ask the President to step down.

Ben-Veniste made the disclosure about Dean at the beginning of a hearing before Chief U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, who is considering motions by Hunt and five other bugging conspirators to overturn their convictions.

Ben-Veniste said that Dean, who pleaded guilty Oct. 19 to a single count of conspiracy to obstruct justice in the Watergate coverup, told investigators last week he had discovered the Hunt materials in a file folder at his office that contained President Nixon's estate papers.

Ben-Veniste said the materials—which Dean said he did not read—consisted of the address book and two cloth-bound notebooks that Dean said he "assumed" related to the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

He said Dean told investigators he "shredded the notebooks in a shredder" and tossed the address book into his wastebasket.

The materials apparently were among those found in Hunt's safe immediately following the arrest on June 17, 1972, of five persons inside Democratic headquarters at the Watergate.

Hunt sat stony-faced as Daniel E. Shultz, the lawyer for four Miami-area Watergate defendants—Bernard L. Barker, Frank A. Sturgis, Virgilio R. Gonzalez and Eugenio R. Martinez—argued for nearly one hour that they should be permitted to switch their guilty pleas to innocent.

Reforms Won't Trim Europe's Food Costs

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The European Common Market announced its long awaited farm reform proposals today but said they would do nothing to bring down food costs to European consumers.

The overall package cost for the housewife will not change, said Pierre Lardinois, the Common Market agricultural commissioner in response to newsmen's questions whether food costs in Europe, already among the world's highest, will come down.

Lardinois said the Common Market Commission rejected proposals for a major reform in which the cost of subsidies to farmers would be carried by taxation instead of high food prices. Instead, he announced smaller reforms aimed at increasing production of beef and feed grains and discouraging butter surpluses.

The commissioner estimated these reforms would enable the Common Market to cut its farm support costs by about $1.2 billion below what they would have otherwise been by 1978. But he admitted there were no exact figures on what those costs would have been.

The proposals must be approved by the nine Commom Market member nations before they become official. Lardinois said this would require courage.

Among the major proposals . . . The European surplus butter mountain will be trimmed by a penalty tax of up to 2 per cent on dairy production of more than 10,000 quarts of milk per farmer per year when the entire Common Market is in surplus.

There will be an increase in support prices for beef, a decrease in support prices for veal and encouragement of feed grain production to bring more beef to market.

Soybean production will be encouraged. Lardinois said this would not cut into imports of American soybeans — currently a major source of feed proteins.

The proposals urged increase in production of mutton and lamb. Lardinois said there would be no change in regulations for such commodities as fish, fruit, and sugar.

New Health Insurance Plan Coming

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A new national health insurance program for "all American citizens" has been presented to President Nixon by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger said today.

The plan is "based on a concept of partnership between the federal government and our private health care system," Weinberger said at a meeting of the American Public Health Association.

Weinberger said he could not disclose details of the HEW proposal until it has been reviewed by the White House, but he said the proposal "will assure that every American who needs it, but cannot afford it, will have access to quality health care."

The secretary said the administration's proposals will "not nationalize both the health insurance industry and private health care."

Reagan Tax Plan Seen As Boon To The Wealthy

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — About 200 wealthy Californians will avoid paying an average of $2,000 apiece in state income taxes on preferential income if Gov. Ronald Reagan's tax initiative passes, Sen. Mervyn M. Dymally said today.

The Los Angeles Democrat said a provision of Prop. 1 would wipe out the current "minimum income tax" on high income earners with preferential income. The provision was enacted by the legislature two years ago.

A spokesman for the state Franchise Tax Board confirmed Dymally's figures.

However, Reagan denies the initiative, by itself, would eliminate the tax on preferential income. He contends that decision ultimately would rest with the legislature.

Dymally said that a person with $1 million in preferential income, for example, could escape paying $242,000 in state taxes.

Larry Counts of the Franchise Tax Board said elimination of the tax on preferential income would result in about 200 persons to receive a total of $400,000 in state income tax breaks they would not receive under current law.

$1,000 Fine In Cashing Of Check

I-J Special Report

REDWOOD CITY — A Tiburon man has been fined $1,000 and placed on three years probation for taking a dead man's cashier's check while working as a San Mateo County coroner's deputy.

Ronald Kindred, 39, of Tiburon, and a fellow coroner's deputy, William Scott of San Mateo County were convicted by a superior court jury in June of conspiracy and forgery for trying to cash a $500 check found among a dead man's belongings. A third deputy, Donald Cawley, 44, was convicted only of conspiracy, and was placed on three years probation and fined $500, the San Mateo County District Attorney's office said today.

The sentencing followed an observation period for all three men, in the California Medical Facility at Vacaville.

Racing Crash Injures Youth

A Tiburon youth was seriously injured yesterday during a race at Sears Point Raceway in Solano County when he crashed into a motorcycle ahead of him.

Peter Hicks, 18, of 11 Mercury Avenue, was reported in serious condition today at Marin General Hospital with a head injury.

The accident happened shortly before 5 p.m. in one of the day's last races, according to a track spokesman. She said Hicks, participating in a "moto cross race" on a soft dirt track apparently crashed into a cycle just ahead of him which had stalled with a frozen motor.

Two other cyclists also piled into the crash, the spokesman said, but no one else was injured.

AMERICA AND THE FUTURE OF MAN

Toleration Of Economic Growth

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the sixth of 20 essays by leading men in the world's academic community. The writer of this article is professor of economics at the London School of Economics. Herein he discusses, in connection with what he calls the materialistic society, achievements and social costs in connection with global plenty.)

By E. J. MISHAN
Distributed by Copley News Service

Answer to the question whether economic growth is necessary for survival requires only a glance at the historical record. For thousands of years prior to the last two hundred, civilizations rose and fell. There were times of prosperity and times of hardship. But in none was there an era of prolonged economic growth.

The question that exercises thinkers today is not whether society can survive without economic growth. Since economic growth is an exceptional state — an aberration perhaps — the question at issue is just how long economic growth can be sustained on the small planet earth.

We of this generation are already being pressed against the inescapable limitations of a finite planet. Whether or not we succeed in time in stabilizing population, we cannot much longer continue to use up space, to ransack the earth's resources, and to fill its air and waters with effluent with the reckless abandon that has characterized our activity since the industrial revolution.

Two hundred years of scientific discovery and innovation have imbued us with faith in technological progress. Yet, that technoogy has been based on physical conditions that no longer obtain: virtually unlimited resources and a virtually unlimited capacity of the biosphere to assimilate the effluents of technology.

It remains to be seen how technology will cope when abundance in these vital respects gives way to constriction.

If eventually we conclude that economic growth cannot continue much longer, or if we conclude that the existing growth momentum will result in a decline in social welfare, we may elect to move off the growth trajectory toward a more stable economy. If we do so, a number of economic, administrative and social problems arise, none of which however — were we in earnest — would be difficult to deal with. (One has only to remember the speed with which Britain in 1940 transformed herself into a total war economy, and successfully maintained a strict rationing system over all consumer goods for about 10 years, to realize what extraordinary feats of organization a nation can perform when its will is set.)

And, though it would be of some interest to speculate on the extent and form of government intervention that would be necessary during the transition to a stable economy, and the alternative schemes for rationing the use of raw materials, in the present climate of opinion such discussions would be premature. They will be pertinent only when society is prepared to regard seriously the proposal that we move off the growth path.

In the circumstances, it would seem to me more sensible to contribute to the debate by uncovering some of the unhappier consequences of continued economic growth in the affluent societies of the West.

Consider first the motive forces behind economic growth. As Bernard Shaw once remarked, "Discontent is the mainspring of progress." This discontent is writ large into the ethos of the consumer society. It is institutionalized by the agencies of Madison Avenue, and hallowed by our system of education.

If continued discontent with what they have is required to keep people buying the increasing outputs of modern industry, and if continued discontent with their status is necessary to keep them working the machine, can we really believe that people can somehow be made happier as they absorb more goods? The secret of how to keep people running is to widen the gap between their material condition and their material expectations. That gap is a measure of their discontent, and it was never wider than it is today.

In an affluent society people's satisfactions, as Thorstein Veblen observed, depend not only on the innate utility of the goods they buy but also on their status value. Thus to a person in a high consumption society, it is not his absolute real income that counts as much as his relative income — his position in the structure of income.

Thus, he may feel aggrieved receiving a 10 per cent rise in his income if incomes of others have risen by 20 per cent.

The more this attitude prevails — and the ethos of our society tends to promote it — the more futile is the objective of economic growth for society as a whole. For it is obvious that over time everybody cannot become relatively better off.

Thus, once people's satisfactions come to depend almost wholly on relative income, or on some other index of status, a sustained rise in the levels of consumption — though it may well be necessary for maintaining the momentum of powerful corporations — yields little additional satisfaction to society, even in the absence of all spillover costs. Indeed, obsessive concern with status and income and, in consequence, a lifetime devoted to nursing one's prospects go far to drain the joy from one's spirit.

Secondly, we might want to ponder briefly on some of the unexpected repercussions of a number of much heralded inventions. The automobile, in addition to producing congestion, noise, stench, visual distraction, has been responsible also for the monotony, sameness and ugliness of vast urban areas the world over. Having multiplied like the locust, having swarmed through every street and alley, automobiles have eliminated all the gaiety and mingling once associated with the famous cities of the world.

DR. E. J. MISHAN
A finite planet

The airliner, in addition to plunging us into an era of shrieking skies, has been responsible for a tourist explosion that has destroyed irrevocably all the once-famed resorts. This process of erosion continues year by year. Alas for our grandchildren who are on the way to inherit a world almost bereft of scenic beauty and grandeur.

Thirdly, we might wonder in a general way whether the untoward consequences of commercially inspired technology are inescapable.

Does not universal plenty itself breed a "throw-away" attitude to things? Gifts lose the power to move when a person has "everything" and when wealth is such that no sacrifice is entailed in bestowing them.

But technology not only destroys our relish of life by sating us with goods; it is an insidious force in its own right. As a form of compulsive systematization it has begun to edge itself into every niche of what used to be our private lives and secret feelings.

Methods for attaining success, for "optimizing" in sex, are taught by tape and manual. Techniques for love, friendship, fervor, sarcasm, surrender, repartee, fantasy, impulse and laughter are all imparted to the buyer of the booklet or enroller in the course. Soon there might be no corner into which a person can crouch and call his own.

He will become a part of a world of mime and mimickry, where feelings are engineered, where spontaneity is rehearsed and no untutored emotion is left to well up in him. Imagine a world in which all the affection we can expect to receive has been studied as a technique.

Again, the laborsaving innovations at which technology excels have the effect of transferring people's dependence on others to dependence on the machine. Yet is it not true that human interdependence is the source of mutual affection; of giving and receiving? Packaged and precooked foods save the time of the busy housewife, who is now enjoined to add to her dignity by competing for cash on the labor market. But when a woman cooks for her man or her family is it only a chore? Or is there not also an instinctual gratification in such an act of tenderness and affirmation?

Children's television programs make storytelling at bedtime obsolete.

But does not the child who listens to his parents gently unfolding the tale enjoy and share a richer experience? True, we can, at the flick of a finger, flood the room with orchestral music that is perfectly executed. But before the turn of the century, when the music a man enjoyed might depend on his wife's skill at the pianoforte or on his daughter's singing, was there not also some quiet joy flowing between them?

It is sobering to wonder seriously if more and more of what is innately trivial is being gained at a cost of more and more of what is innately valuable. Allow that the machine is incomparably efficient, can its efficiency in yielding services compensate for the inevitable loss of authentic human experience? Can anyone reasonably expect technological innovations in the future to be more humanizing?

Surely it is more likely that the main thrust of product innovation associated with economic growth in already wealthy countries will act to diminish over time opportunities for direct communication between people. For such innovation seeks overtly to reduce their need of the direct services of other human beings.

Thus, personal contracts have already declined with the spread of more efficient labor-saving devices such as supermarkets, cafeterias, vending machines, transistors, television sets and, of course, the automobile. And they will continue to decline with the trends toward computerization in offices and factories, toward patient-monitoring machines and computer-diagnoses in hospitals, and toward closed-circuit television instruction, automated libraries and teaching machines.

Thus, the compulsive search for efficiency, directed mainly to innovations that save effort and time, must continue to produce for us elegant instruments for our mutual estrangement. The consequence of the triumphant advance of technology is an unavoidable drying up of the direct flow of sympathy and affectionate communication between people.

Finally, we might ask if the things commonly associated with the good life — a more settled way of living, less frenzy, more margin, a sense of space and ease, an environment of natural beauty and architectural dignity, a rehabilitation of norms of propriety and taste — can ever be realized by rich consumer societies eternally straining to woo the consumer with ever more outlandish and expendable gadgetry, and eternally seeking for faster economic growth.

And, what of the other attributes by which men live?

If it is conceded that once subsistence levels have been passed — and they have in the West — the sources of men's more enduring satisfactions spring from mutual trust and affection, from sharing gladness and sorrow, from giving love and accepting it, from openhearted companionship and laughter; if it is further conceded that in a civilized society the joy of living is augmented primarily by the sense of wonder inspired by the unfolding of nature, by the perception of beauty inspired by great art, and by the renewal of faith and hope inspired by the heroic and the good; if this much is conceded, is it possible to believe also that unremitting attempts to harness the greater part of men's energies and ingenuity to the task of amassing an ever greater assortment of material possessions can add much to people's happiness?

A BOY'S BEST FRIEND

Larky, hippo mascot of the Larkspur Library, gives 2-year-old Vincent Pedelaborde of Larkspur a personal tour of the library during the library and city's open house. The library was "swarming with people" yesterday, according to Librarian Richard A. Kilbourne, as merchants, town fire department and library opened their doors to the public in the annual kickoff to the holiday season. The mascot, who will make more personal appearances to publicize the library, was named by 10-year-old Theresa Oliver of 10 Corte de Sabla, Greenbrae, who won $10 donated by the Friends of the Larkspur Library.

One Stabbed In Melee At San Quentin

One San Quentin convict remained hospitalized today with a wound suffered during a melee involving at least five inmates at the prison Saturday night.

Henry Sianez, 30, serving a term for second degree murder in Orange County, was reported in good condition at the prison hospital with a puncture wound in his chest.

Prison officials said the violence occurred at about 10:30 p.m. in the west block, where "honor" inmates may be out of their cells until midnight. Three convicts — Sianez, Gilbert Garcia, 28, and Daniel Lopez, 30 — were attacked by other prisoners with handmade weapons.

Garcia and Lopez were treated for abrasions, apparently the result of being hit with two-by-fours or pipes. Officials also found three prison-made knives and a sock filled with metal.

Two inmates were in solitary confinement today. They are suspects in the attack. Other men also were believed to have been involved.

No motive was known. Although all the men attacked have Spanish surnames, officials said they were not members of any Chicano prison group.

Flexible Working Hours Seen Aiding Use Of Buses

A Marin transit official has recommended county employees be given greater flexibility in work hours in order to stimulate the use of local bus transit.

Robert L. Harrison, assistant general manager of the county transit district, said adjusting work hours would be easier than changing existing bus schedules to fit the traditional 8-to-5 work day.

"We are continually receiving requests to provide service to various large institutions at times which will fit the schedules (of their workers)," he wrote to county supervisors.

"Adjusting the transit schedule for each potential user is not possible due to the number of transfer points which are part of the local bus system. . ."

He said the county should take the leadership among major employers and allow those who want to travel by bus more flexible work hours.

For example, he said, an employee living in Southern Marin could take either of two buses arriving at Civic Center at 7:49 a.m. or 8:19 a.m. Departure from Civic Center would be 4:31 p.m. or 5:01 p.m. respectively.

The 40-hour work week for these employees would be maintained by cutting 20 minutes off their lunch hour.

The only county official to comment on the proposal was Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell who said he would go along on a trial basis.

"We prefer to maintain an established working hour schedule for all employees with no deviation except under abnormal circumstances," Mitchell wrote.

The proposal will be considered tomorrow by county transit district directors at 8:30 a.m. in the supervisors chambers of the Marin Civic Center and at 10:15 p.m. by the supervisors.

San Anselmo Man Is Dead Of Overdose

A 33-year-old San Anselmo man died at home yesterday, apparently of a drug overdose, despite the efforts of two acquaintances to revive him, San Anselmo police said today.

Pronounced dead on arrival at Marin General Hospital at 11:38 a.m., was Wesley William Murrell of 10 Golf Lane, according to the county coroner's office.

Police, responding to an emergency call, said they found Murrell in his bedroom, and said a search of the home produced a suitcase containing three bags of suspected marijuana, an attache case containing a .38 caliber revolver, several plastic bags and paper packets filled with white power and powder residue, and drug paraphernalia.

Found in a garbage can outside the home were several pounds of marijuana and three ounces of suspected cocaine, police said.

Also at the scene were Alicia Fay Lundy, 23, of 32 Porteous Avenue, Fairfax, and Daniel Edgar Rogers, 25, of 202 Butterfield Road, San Anselmo, police said.

Police said the pair, acquaintances of Murrell, gave the following account of events:

They went to Murrell's home about midnight Saturday, and with him snorted "lines" of cocaine and heroin that had been poured on a miror. The two then left to attend a concert, but returned to the Golf Lane home when Murrell failed to join them.

They found Murrell breathing irregularly on his bed, and in an attempt to revive him, stripped the man and packed cold ice around his testicles. They also slapped him repeatedly, gave him hot and cold showers, and mouth to mouth resucitation, police said.

Hours later, they summoned an ambulance when his condition appeared to worsen, police said.

San Anselmo police said that the Marin district attorney's office will determine if any charges will be filed against the pair. They were questioned and released.

Murrell, a native of Pennsylvania who was discharged from the Navy in 1965, is survived by a sister, Ruth O. Mitchell of Pennsylvania. Funeral arrangements were pending today at the Chapel of the Hills mortuary.

Open Space Request On Agenda

The Belvedere Citizens Open Space Committee will report to the Belvedere City Council tonight at 7:30 p.m. at city hall on its progress in negotiating to buy five homes and their sites on Beach Road at Belvedere Cove.

The committee previously has recommended that the homes which belong to the Belvedere Land Co. be removed or torn down to provide a better view of San Francisco Bay.

One of the structures is the cabin of a passenger ship which sailed from San Francisco to the Orient in the late 1800s.

According to City Mgr. William L. Cavalli, the committee will ask the council to hold a hearing Nov. 15 to discuss the purchase of the homes.

Two Face Trial On Shoplifting

A man and woman accused of shoplifting $163 worth of goods from the Emporium have been bound over to Marin Superior Court on a burglary charge.

William Thomas Brennan, 30, of San Rafael, and Maryanne Frieda Schmidt, 22, of Berkeley, were ordered to appear Nov. 14.

Municipal Court Judge Robert A. Smallman ruled following a preliminary hearing Friday there is enough evidence to try the pair.

Trustees To Eye Roche's Contract

Lagunitas School District trustees will consider renewing Supt. Harry F. Roche's contract when they meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the multi-purpose room in the school.

The trustees will also consider a request by the Lagunitas Teachers Association for the recognition of a Certificated Employees Council.

Strawberry Development Plan Is Due For Unveiling Tonight

The long-awaited Strawberry Community Plan, which proposes close controls over future growth in that unincorporated Richardson Bay area will be unveiled tonight at the Strawberry Area Community Council meeting at 8 p.m. at the Strawberry Recreation Center.

Local planning groups and planner Steven Chaum, working under contract for the county planning department, have been struggling with the plan for several months.

As well as Strawberry, the plan takes in such areas as Eagle Rock, Bel Air and the unincorported sections of Alto. Most of this area has been placed in the sphere of influence of the City of Tiburon by the county's Local Agency Formation Commission. But many Strawberry residents have resisted the idea of ever becoming a part of Tiburon or of Mill Valley and have turned back annexation past attempts at the polls.

The Strawberry Area Community Council has repeatedly pushed the county for more local say in planning for the area. This plan, drawn up with extensive participation by the council, represents the climax of this effort.

Chaum said he and the council tried in the new plan to reconcile previous plans drawn up by the community and policies set in the Marin County General Plan. The final product will be presented by the county planning commission Nov. 26.

According to Chaum, the planning area he worked with now has about 2,500 dwelling units, completed or near completion. The new plan proposes an ultimate limit of 4,000 units. To achieve it, he projects that the community grow at a rate of about 3 per cent a year.

According to the plan, a residential development review board for the Richardson Bay area should be set up to regulate the rate of growth and distribution of new residential development.

The plan also calls for setting up a local design review board to consider building plans.

As far as open space is concerned, the plan recommends as much preservation as possible of open Richardson Bay waters and shorelines and green hillsides and ridgelands. It suggests no further residential building in the water and tidal areas of Richardson Bay and no major fill or dredging in water areas.

Ideas for preserving Ring Mountain, the ridge which represents one of the largest areas of open space in the planning area, will be presented at the meeting by the Ring Mountain Advisory Group.

Chaum said the plan calls for measures to try to maintain a housing mix that would enable low and medium income families to live in the area.

It also calls for improving the sewer system in the area, he said, and recommends that future water and sewer hookups are based on local growth rate regulation.

The new plan suggests ways of limiting through traffic from the Strawberry Shopping Center into residential neighborhoods and how to develop a better road system near the center to reduce congestion at the Tiburon Boulevard and Highway 101 interchange.

Delay In Bridge Toll Boost Eyed

ALMANAC

By U. P. International

Today is Monday, Nov. 5, the 309th day of 1973 with 56 to follow.

The moon is approaching its full phase. The morning star is Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

American historian Will Durant was born Nov. 5, 1885.

On this day in history:

In 1733, German-born publisher John Peter Zenger began printing the newspaper "The New York Weekly Journal."

In 1911, Galbraith Rogers completed the first transcontinental flight. It took him 49 days to fly from New York City to Pasadena, California, with frequent stops.

In 1940, President Franklin Delano Roosevelt was re-elected to an unprecedented third term.

In 1955, Austria opened the reconstructed Vienna State Opera House and formally celebrated its liberation from 17 years of foreign occupation.

A thought for the day: British writer William McFee said, "Responsibility's like a string that we can see only the middle of. Both ends are out of sight."

SOUTH RUFFS

West opened the king of hearts, and South ruffed and drew one round of trumps. He then led the jack of diamonds for a finesse.

East won with the queen of diamonds and returned the queen of clubs. The defenders took three club tricks, defeating the contract.

All of the evidence is in. All of the clues are in clear sight. Can you detect the crime?

THE CRIMINAL

South was, of course, the criminal. He should have made his contract. The crime occurred at the very first trick. South should not ruff the king of hearts. Instead, he should discard a diamond.

RUFFS ACE

West continued with the ace of hearts, and this time South ruffs. He draws one round of trumps and takes the ace and king of diamonds.

Now he can lead the nine of diamonds from dummy. If East plays low, South discards a club. If East plays the queen of diamonds, South ruffs and leads a trump to dummy to discard a club on the last diamond.

This gives the opponents one heart and two clubs instead of one diamond and three clubs.

NO DIFFERENCE

South doesn't care if West has the queen of diamonds. In that case, West will win a diamond trick, but South will discard one club on that trick and one club later on when he gets to dummy to lead the last diamond.

West cannot switch to clubs without giving South a trick with the king.

As dealer, you hold:

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one spade.

If partner bids diamonds and clubs strongly, you may get to a slam. Avoid making a shutout bid on a hand good enough for a bid of one.

Statistics On Horse Travel

MARTINEZ (UPI) — Horse travel in the United States in 1901 was eight times as deadly on a per mile basis as motor vehicle travel last year in California, according to a California Highway Patrol officer.

Capt. Paul Latoures said horse accidents killed 3,850 persons in 1901 nationwide when 26 million horses traveled 12 billion miles, resulting in a fatality rate of 32 persons per hundred million miles.

On a comparable mileage basis the 1972 California rate was 3.9 persons.

Latoures said he came up with the figures by studying documents on road transportation for his use in talks to service clubs.

Energy, Foreign Policy Talk Is Scheduled

The relationship between our energy demands and foreign policy will be discussed at 8:15 p.m., Nov. 12, by Dennis J. O'Brien before the World Affairs Council of Northern California at the Mill Valley Outdoor Art Club.

"Energy and Foreign Police: Is There a Crisis?" is the title of O'Brien's talk. He is an assistant professor of history and international affairs at California State University, Sacramento.

Trio Will Perform

The Francesco Trio, now in residence at Stanford University, will play works of Haydn, Debussy, Brahms and Leland Smith at 8 p.m. Friday in the College of Marin Fine Arts Theater. The trio — piano, violin and cello — will perform as part of the college's concert-lecture series.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Woman With Two Metal Hips Embarrassed By Airport Device

A 58-year-old woman with two artificial (metal) hips was somewhat embarrassed when she went through the metal screening device at the airport. The reaction to the detector was positive, and she was asked to step aside while a young woman passed the hand magnetometer over her body. The "wand," as it is called, emits a sound that grows louder as it approaches metal. In this woman's case, the device had localized the metal in both joints.

"I told them about my operation, and the security guard asked if I had a note or letter from my physician to confirm my statement. Since I didn't, they sent me to the airport nurse who cleared me as soon as she saw the scar.

IN FACT, she gave me a note to use on my return flight. Everyone was nice to me, and I realize that these measures are necessary to combat commercial aircraft hijacking. Please tell your millions of readers to carry a letter from their doctor if they have or wear metal orthopedic devices,"

The letter speaks for itself. The Federal Aviation Administration has established stringent requirements for the screening of airline passengers and baggage. Devices of this type are used at all major airports. Carry-on luggage is X-rayed and the passengers walk through an oval magnetic metal detector. These devices vary considerably in sensitivity and in mode of detection.

When a certain amount of metal triggers the alarm, the individual is asked to undergo an external search with a hand magnetometer. The wand-like device localizes the mass of metal. These work on a magnetic principle. Electricity is not used and consequently, heart pacemakers or other electrical devices are not altered.

DR. JOHN G. Suelzer, consultant to the Indianapolis Airport Authority, studied the reaction of different types of orthopedic equipment to detectors. Most of the external devices were corset stays and back or leg braces made of aluminum and steel. The corset stays were made of steel. All these materials gave a positive reaction to the detectors. A steel shoe plate was negative. Internal orthopedic devices such as metal screws, plates, and pins were usually negative as were plastic hip joints. Positive reactions occurred when implanted metallic devices were larger or of a particular shape.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, San Rafael, Ca 94902. Telephone inquiries will not be answered.

FOOT ODOR

J.K.B. writes: What causes foot odor?

REPLY

Too much perspiration and uncleanliness are the most common causes. Various skin conditions, such as ringworm and allergy to certain materials in the shoes also can be responsible for foot odor.

Youth Is Killed On Glider Flight

SYLMAR (UPI) —A young Westminster man fell 125 feet to his death yesterday when his hang glider collapsed after take-off from a 1,400-foot perch in the San Gabriel Mountains.

Police said David Sizemore, 20, took a running start from the mountain cliff and sailed over the ledge, but a strut on the glider broke, causing the sail to collapse.

Sizemore was pronounced dead at Holy Cross Hospital following the accident near here.

Buffalo Ranch Manager Sought

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) —If you'd like a "home where the buffalo roam, and the sky is not cloudy all day"—but the television reception isn't so hot —the Arizona Game and Fish Department is looking for you.

The department is searching for someone to become manager of its Houserock Valley Buffalo Ranch, which is located just north of the Grand Canyon at the edge of the Kaibab North National Forest. The 67,000-acre spread is home to about 250 state-owned buffalo.

The department says there aren't many applicants, noting that the salary is only $9,000 a year, the ranch house has indoor plumbing out is fed by an icy spring, and the electricity is sufficient "once the generator is fired up, but TV reception is not too good, and the working hours are likely to be long."

Sanctuary Planned For Bird Colony

GREENVILLE, N.C. (UPI) — The U.S. Forest Service will set aside four or five acres in the Croatan National Forest to protect the rare and endangered Red-Cockaded Woodpecker discovered by a group of East Carolina University students, according to the school.

ECU said yesterday the students found the colony of birds while on a three-month biology field project.

Resignation Call Said Premature

CINCINNATI (UPI) —Sen. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio, said yesterday he believed Sen. Edward M. Brooke, R-Mass., was premature in calling for President Nixon's resignation before Congress confirmed the nomination of Gerald Ford as vice president.

"Before you talk about resignation, you have to remember both the House and Senate have constitutional duties to act on the confirmation of Gerald Ford as vice president," Taft said. "I think it is a mistake to even consider the question of resignation before we act in that regard."

Increase Noted In Arson Rate

MENLO PARK, Calif. (UPI) —The crime of arson now occurs 10 times more often than it did two decades ago and has spread to the suburbs, according to the Stanford Research Institute.

"The central cities remain the most intense trouble spots, but rates are generally rising more rapidly in outlying suburbs," said Kendall D. Moll, who prepared the report released Saturday.

Moll said statistics compiled through 1971 showed that arson accounted for possibly 30 per cent or more of all building losses.

Marin Conclave Asks Impeachment

By REBECCA LARSEN

More than 200 Marin liberals and Democrats met Saturday at the College of Marin and decided that one way or another President Nixon has got to go.

Their position was clear from the minute the first speaker, William M. Bennett of Kentfield, chairman of the California State Board of Equalization, got the crowd to rise in a body, shaking their fists and cheering, "Let's impeach Richard Nixon!"

Conference participants also called for rejection of Rep. Gerald Ford, R-Mich., as vice president. Their resolution called him too tainted with President Nixon's philosophy and said Carl Albert, speaker of the House, would be a preferable interim president.

The conference, the fourth annual conclave sponsored by Marin Alternative, was titled, "Watergate: What Can We Do About It?" but besides considering Watergate and impeachment, it diverged into discussions on whether President Nixon had links to organized crime and arguments against Proposition 1, the tax limitation measure, and Proposition E, the Marin Municipal Water District bond issue.

Most speakers were Democrats, including two gubernatorial hopefuls — Sen. George R. Moscone of San Francisco and William Matson Roth, Ross, University of Californai regent and Assemblyman John R. Burton, San Francisco.

Petitions calling for impeachment circulated wildly throughout the day. The crowd was mixed in age.

At one of six special workshops during the conference, participants tried to come up with an answer to the question, "Impeachment-Desireable or Realistic?" Assemblyman Kenneth Meade, D-Oakland, and attorney Robert Bennett McCreadie of the American Civil Liberties Union gave the arguments for impeachment, and Marin County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney, gave the drawbacks.

According to Meade, the U.S. Constitution does not limit the reasons for impeachment to criminal acts. "We may never come to the position where Nixon is convicted of a criminal act," he said.

He also said that vice-presidential designate Gerald Ford once argued in the House of Representatives for the impeachment of a Supreme Court justice on the grounds that "an impeachable offense is whatever the House of Representatives considers it to be."

"Precedents show we already have ample evidence to proceed with the impeachment," said Meade.

McCreadie cited reasons the American Civil Liberties Union believes Nixon can be impeached including stating that Nixon secretly recorded conversations in his office without advising participants, had interfered with the rights of peaceable assembly at demonstrations, had usurped the war-making powers of Congress and had interfered with a free press.

"Impeachment is not a get-Nixon approach," he said. "It's the one way to clear the air."

Maloney, introduced as the "Devil's advocate" by workshop chairman Jack Felson, member of the Marin Municipal Water District board, tried to dampen the impeachment spirit.

He called the Senate sitting as a jury in an impeachment "a wacky tribunal" and said that during the impeachment of President Andrew Johnson after the Civil War there had been fantastic lobbying efforts to get senators to vote based on things other than evidence. "They can vote for any reason they feel proper," he said.

He also questioned whether Nixon would be driven to a desperate act under the threat of impeachment. "If someone under pressure is suddenly faced with the destruction of all he's worked for, what can happen?" asked Maloney. "Our president can destroy the world on his own initiative."

He estimated that the impeachment process could take six months to a year. "The Senate and the president would both be atrophied during that time, and the House can't act without the agreement of either of them".

"I'm not sure that impeachment is the right remedy in this day and time," he said. "Maybe we just have to be more alert in electing our politicians."

In spite of these warnings, the workshop as a body agreed to resolve to write to the House of Representatives asking it to impeach the president.

Purging Of Old Data In Police Files Urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Law enforcement computer banks should be "purged" periodically of outdated information on criminals, and persons cleared of charges should be allowed to retrieve their police records, the National Advisory Commission on Criminal Justice Standards and Goals says in a report.

The report urged congressional action to allow anyone cleared of criminal charges to go to court to get possession of all information on his or her arrest' including fingerprints and photographs, within 60 days after the case is concluded.

The commission dealt mainly with Computerized Criminal History (CCH) systems used by at least 40 states and skirted the issue of intelligence data.

"People change with time," the report said. "Files which contain information about them, however, do not change unless someone changes them. Often old data presents an unreliable guide to a person's present attitudes and behavior. When such data becomes, misleading, it should be removed from the system."

Richard W. Velde, associate administrator of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administratio, which funded the study, said federal legislation is needed to determine basic security and privacy guidelines and to restrict "non-criminal justice system access" to the computer files.

Velde said that under the commission proposal, old information "purged" from the computer would be sealed. It could be reopened only if the person involved was subsequently wanted or arrested for a crime. The records would be reopened "only for purposes of subsequent investigation, prosecution and disposition of that offense."

Novato Blanks 3rd Straight Foe, 13-0

By LEW CODDINGTON

Will anybody ever score on Novato again?

That was the question being asked in Marin County Athletic League football circles over the weekend after the Hornets posted their third consecutive shutout Saturday.

The 13-0 victory over San Rafael High School, which entered the game as the MCAL's leading offensive team, was devastating and complete. True, the Bulldogs got to the Novato 21-yard line on a fluke play in the first half, but after intermission San Rafael could manage only 21 yards total offense and one first down.

"They are outstanding," affirmed Novato coach Al Scott. "Scott Johnson was especially tough."

Johnson, the 6-foot-2, 190-pound senior defensive end, burst through to sack San Rafael quarterback Dave Steele three times for 32 yards, and led the hard charge which forced four interceptions.

About 1,300 fans at Novato shouted approval as the Hornets improved their MCAL record to 3-1. The Hornets are tied with Drake, half a game behind Redwood (4-1). San Rafael dipped to 2-3.

The Hornets outgained San Rafael only 162-96 for the day, but the game was more one-sided than that, because San Rafael consistently had terrible field position guaranteed by Novato's defensive play.

The Bulldogs began their first three series from their own seven, 18 and seven yard lines, and after their third punt, Novato had the ball on the Bulldog 43. Nine plays later, Mark Magers plunged across for a one-yard touchdown, the only one which was really necessary.

The other score came on a six-yard run by Kevin O'Reilly late in the fourth quarter, after the desperate Bulldogs had failed on a pass from punt formation from their own 20.

Novato's offense, benefitting from outstanding field position, had several scoring opportunities, but kickers missed two field goals and wide-open receivers dropped two sure touchdown passes.

San Rafael's only threat came late in the second quarter, after Fred Hurst caught a pass which had deflected off the hands of Craig Saunders for a 26-yard gain. Unlike the pros, no defensive man need touch the ball in between. The Bulldogs ran out of time on the Novato 21.

POWER PLAY — In the classic pose of a running back, with head down, legs moving, arm cradling the precious football, Novato High School's Wayne Smith churned ahead for a gain Saturday against San Rafael. Dave Steele (right) and an unidentified Bulldog came up to stop him. Smith gained 70 yards rushing — which was 50 yards more than the entire San Rafael team managed — as the Hornets posted their third consecutive shutout in a 13-0 victory at Novato.

Record-Breaking Day For Brodie

Forty-Niner quarterback John Brodie is making sure he bows out of football with a record-breaking season. But I don't think his latest record is what he had in mind.

John, a veteran of 17 pro football winters, already has his name in the 49er pressbook record section 17 times. What he did yesterday in Detroit when he had six of his passes intercepted was erase the names of Y.A. Tittle and Frank Albert from the record which reads: "Most passes had intercepted — one game." Y.A. and Frankie say thanks.

Before yesterday's record-shattering performance by Brodie, the mark was five, accomplished twice by Tittle and once by Albert and Brodie. Now Brodie's name stands alone. He still has a way to go if he is to catch Tittle's season interception record of 28. He needs 18 more. (And if you were wondering about the NFL record, Brodie was two interceptions short. Jim Hardy of the Chicago Cards had eight of his passes intercepted against Philadelphia, Sept. 24, 1950)

I WOULD THINK John, a man who has been booed and then cheered as intermittent as April showers, would not be getting as much playing time the rest of the season. Since he has already announced his retirement effective on the 49ers' last game of the season, I would think head coach Dick Nolan would use backup men Steve Spurrier and Joe Reed more.

With the season quickly turning into a shambles, Nolan had better start planning for the future when Brodie is sitting back in an easy chair continuing to draw that million-dollar settlement which came from the NFL merger just as Brodie was about to jump leagues with the Houston Oilers.

WITH THE 49ERS mired in the National Football Conference's Western Division cellar after yesterday's 30-20 loss to the Lions, Nolan's big worry now is that the 49ers don't have a losing season. With a win-loss record of 3-5, the 49ers can only afford to lose two more games and with the opponents ahead, this will not be an easy thing. There are the Washington Redskins next Sunday for starters, followed by Los Angeles, Green Bay, Philadelphia, New Orleans and Pittsburgh. It seems a shame, but a team that most observers picked for the playoffs and possible Super Bowl will be fighting to keep above the .500 level.

The 49er-Lions game yesterday got most of the play on the Channel 5 simulcast which also included brief parts of the Raider-New York Giants game in Oakland Coliseum. Hopping back and forth from Oakland to Detroit, CBS was trying to keep both the 49er and Raider fans happy by showing both games. The network was forced into this situation when the television blackout was lifted in Oakland after that game was announced as a sellout. Channel 5 had already planned to bring the game in Detroit to the Bay Area but then orders came down from the New York main office to show both games, same time.

EARLY PUBLICITY said that Channel 5's Barry Tompkins would play a key role in this simulcast but about the only thing Barry did was utter a few words every so often: "Now we switch to Detroit," or "Now we switch to Oakland."

With the Raiders blitzing the Giants, 42-0, Channel 5 did most of its telecasting on the 49er game, since that was close throughout most of the afternoon. And when Brodie was going for that team record in the fourth quarter, Channel 5 had to stay on top of the action. Records like that don't come every day.

Opportunity Knocks Twice For Munson

DETROIT (UPI) —Opportunity knocked twice for Bill Munson, but he was three years waiting for that second knock.

"Yeah, I was nervous before the game," Munson said after marshalling the Detroit Lions to a 30-20 win over the San Francisco 49ers yesterday. "But I think that's good, though. It was a challenge I had."

Munson threw for 234 yards and hit Larry Walton with a pair of touchdown passes.

It was his first start in exactly three years. The No. 1 spot fell to him by default last week when regular starter Greg Landry, whom Munson has backed up for 41 games, suffered a knee injury.

"To really be honest, you have doubts," he said of taking over the helm after three years as a backup. "When you go out, you have something to prove."

Munson has become dejected during his three years as a No. 2 quarterback.

"After three years, I guess I'm just awfully lucky to even be here," he said.

Munson had asked to be traded to a team where he could become a starter, but the Lions refused.

While Munson was having a good day, his San Francisco counterpart John Brodie was having a nightmare.

Brodie was a respectable 23 of 47 in the air for 254 yards, but Detroit defenders picked off six of his aerials and four times the Lions offensive, and Munson, turned them into scores.

Lem Barney plucked two of Brodie's passes from the air, his first setting up a 19-yard touchdown pass to Walton and his second enabling Jim O'Brien to kick a 10-yard field goal.

Walton followed his first scoring reception with another for 49 yards and wound up with 99 yards for his five catches.

Tight end Ted Kwalick of San Francisco snared eight passes and gained 133 yards with them. One was good for a 31-yard touchdown just before the half ended and a 46-yard catch came right before Gene Washington scored with a five-yard pass.

But field goals by Bruce Gossett of 24 and 35 yards were the only other scores San Francisco could manage and the 49ers didn't get on the board in the second half.

Altie Taylor bounced through the middle for a 19-yard touchdown and O'Brien added field goals of 39 and 37 yards to complete his day's work.

Stabler Can't Understand The Fuss

OAKLAND (UPI) — Ken Stabler can't understand what all the fuss is about.

The young Oakland Raiders quarterback completed 16 of 21 passes for 212 yards and two touchdowns yesterday in a 42-0 humiliation of the New York Giants and now has a three-game record of 57 completions in 74 attempts for 829 yards and six TDs.

That's enough to rank him as the top passer in the National Football League, but listen to Stabler:

"Five games isn't nearly enough games to judge a man," he said. "Wait until we have played 14 games and then make a judgment. Besides, in football the quarterback gets too much of the credit."

Still, it's been Stabler's hot hand that has the Raiders a game ahead of Kansas City in the American Football Conference West race with six games left to play. Stabler took over as the Raiders' No. 1 quarterback five games back and in the stretch the team has won four times and been tied another.

"No question, Kenny has a hot hand," said Oakland Coach John Madden. "As for the victory over New York, it was just one of those days when everything we did was right. I'm sure we could have scored more points but what would that have proved."

The Giants, last shut out in 1968, suffered one of their all time worst defeats and never were in the game. They now have dropped six straight decisions and are last in the National Football Conference East with a 1-6-1 record.

Alex Webster, the harried New York coach who must be wondering what has happened after his club won six exhibitions and the first game of the regular season, calls the Raiders one of the most physical team's he's ever seen.

"They took it to us right from the start and never let up," Webster said. "I can't understand our looking so bad. We've had good practices two weeks in a row now and we're in pretty good physical condition, yet we were as flat as a team can be.

"I've never seen our team look worse. At the same time, I've never seen a team with as good an offensive line as the Raiders. No question, they are the best team we've played this year, absolutely the most physical I've seen in many years."

While the Raiders rolled up 228 yards rushing and 255 passing, the Giants managed only 57 yards on the ground and 128 passing. In the first half, when the Raiders rushed to a 28-0 lead, New York had a total offense of 45 yards with Randy Johnson as quarterback.

Things picked up a bit in the second half when Norm Snead took over but it hardly made any difference. Each quarterback was intercepted twice and two of the five Oakland scores came as a result of the errors.

New York couldn't get the ball past midfield until there was only 3:17 left in the game when a 22-yard Snead to Bob Grim pass got the Giants to the Oakland 39. Another pass to Charlie Evans moved the Giants to the six but in four plays they couldn't punch it over even against Oakland's second string defense.

Stabler threw 26 yards to Bob Moore and 18 to Charlie Smith for his TDs. Marv Hubbard went 8 and 9 yards for two more scores, Clarence Davis ran five yards for another and Daryle Lamonica, who took over for Stabler in the final quarter, threw 34 yards to Steve Sweeney for the final tally.

OVER BILL

Amateur Sports War Renewed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two major amateur sports organizations today renewed their battle against legislation which would set up federal control over their activities.

Dr. Alan Chapman, president of the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) and Robert J. Kane, executive vice president of the United States Olympic Committee (USOC) teamed up to denounce a bill already approved by the Senate Commerce Committee.

The bill, sent to the Senate but later withdrawn, would create the Amateur Sports Board with specific authority to review organizations holding international sports franchises and broad rule-making authority.

Testifying at a committee hearing, Kane said USOC favored a bill which would provide compulsory arbitration by the non-governmental American Arbitration Association of all disputes involving sports governing bodies, other sports organizations, and the athletes.

Chapman, however, proposed a temporary Olympics Study Commission and a fixed-term federal board to review international franchise holders.

He said such an approach would limit "the intrusion of the federal government into amateur athletics in this country and minimize the scope and life of any government amateur sports establishment."

Young Crenshaw Shows Golf Worth

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — It didn't take Ben Crenshaw long to prove himself as a professional golfer.

Crenshaw overcame two bogeys that could have been disastrous and extreme pressure from veterans George Archer and Orville Moody yesterday to take a two-stroke victory in his first tournament as a tour regular.

The 21-year-old former University of Texas star collected the $25,000 first prize of the Texas Open for his effort. Crenshaw wound up with a 14-under-par 270, two strokes ahead of Moody and three in front of Archer for the victory over the 6,990-yard, par 71 Woodlake Golf Club course.

Rod Funseth finished fourth with a 276 while Jack Ewing fired the day's best round, a 66, and won a fifth place tie with Dave Eichelberger.

Defending champion Mike Hill finished at 280 in a tie with Charles Coody, Bruce Fleischer and Tom Kite, Crenshaw's former teammate at Texas. Napa's Ron Cerrudo closed at 283.

Both Moody and Archer tied for the lead of the $125,000 tournament at one time or another during the day. But Crenshaw, who never relinquished his lead after firing an opening round of six-under-par 65, kept his composure.

He hit his tee shot in the water on the 439-yard, par 4 No. 9 hole and wound up with a bogey, making a sensational approach shot after dropping a ball for a one-stroke penalty. Moody, playing in the same threesome with Crenshaw, also bogeyed the hole.

Then on the 468-yard, par 4 No. 14 hole, which had given golfers fits all week, Crenshaw "skied" his tee shot and wound up with another bogey and Moody hit a birdie.

Moody was only one stroke back entering the 583-yard par 5 No. 18 and tournament officials started laying plans in the event a sudden death playoff would be necessary. But Crenshaw hit his approach shot three feet from the pin and dropped in the putt for a birdie, while Moody managed only a par.

Both players wound up with four-under-par 67s for the day.

Crenshaw, three time collegiate champion, sunk birdie putts of 15, 13, three, 12, four and three feet during the day and had a total of 11 one-putt greens.

"I'm really fortunate to win," the blond Crenshaw said. "I didn't play as good as Orville did. I did putt good. I had confidence in my putting. I felt like I had a chance to win all week. I kept my game together."

Tournament officials said Crenshaw helped attract the largest crowd in the 44-year history of the Texas Open, an estimated 60,000 over four days, despite the absence of such named players as San Antonio favorite Lee Trevino, Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer.

"It means so much to have people behind you," Crenshaw said. "I just can't thank them enough."

Both Archer and Moody praised the youngster and predicted he would become a superstar in the tradition of Palmer and Nicklaus.

"I was kind of pulling for Ben," Archer said. "I wanted to win, but if I couldn't, I wanted him to win. He should have a tremendous career. He's a great gentleman and a great golfer."

"There've been a lot of new players and none of them has been accepted like Ben," Moody said. "Nobody said anything bad about Ben. I think he'll be a drawing card just like Palmer was. He's got the game for it. He even looks like Palmer, an all-American looking type kid."

NBA ROUNDUP

Injured Lakers' Smith Stands Out

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Los Angeles Lakers center Elmore Smith suffered a fractured cheek bone in the opening quarter of last night's game against Houston, but he blocked 14 shots before leaving the game with four minutes left.

Smith, the 7-foot center acquired from Buffalo before the start of the season, was taken to a hospital for precautionary X-rays, but was expected to leave with the Lakers today on a three-game road trip.

The game, which the Lakers won 106-93, also marked the first appearance of Connie Hawkins as a Laker, but it left the former Phoenix Sun forward a bit bewildered.

"I was very nervous sitting on the bench," said Hawkins who came into the game with 2:54 remaining in the first quarter. "When I was brought in I didn't know whether the applause was for me or the man leaving the game."

But the applause was for Hawkins, who played for 23 minutes, scoring six points and grabbing eight rebounds, although he was still recovering from a knee injury.

Both teams played a sloppy first half with Los Angeles committing 14 turnovers, but the Lakers settled down to a 56-point second half with Jerry West leading the way with a total of 30 points, followed by Gail Goodrich's 21.

"We played well in the second half for a change," said Laker coach Bill Sharman. "We got our fast break going, got more passing, didn't dribble too much and had more patience with our shot selection." The Lakers shot 50 per cent from the field, connecting on 47 of 94 shots.

Rocket foreward Rudy Tomjanovich scored a game high 34 points but overall, Houston made only 38 per cent of their shots from the floor.

The Lakers made it a runaway in the final four minutes, taking as much as a 17-point lead, 100-83. The Lakers closed out the first half with a 50-41 lead.

In other NBA games yesterday, Chicago downed Buffalo in overtime 101-95 Capital edged Phoenix 102-99, Atlanta clipped Cleveland 115-110, Golden State nipped Kansas City-Omaha 92-91 and New York tripped Seattle 111-106.

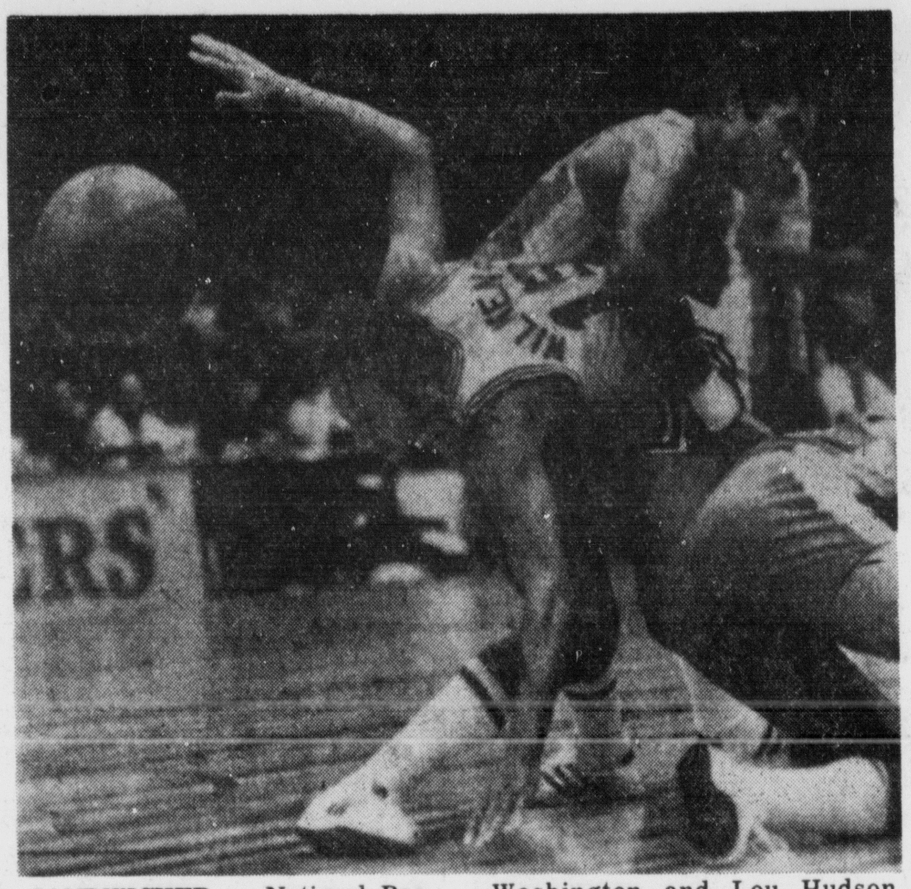
Chet Walker and Bob Love taught Canadian fans a crucial lesson in the ways of pro basketball: don't leave too early.

Buffalo, playing its second of nine games at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens before 6,075 fans, appeared to have beaten Chicago with an 89-86 lead with 30 seconds remaining in the fourth quarter. But Walker, the Bulls agile and powerful forward, drews a foul from Kevin Kunnert while making a layup and sent the game into overtime.

Love, who sometimes scores high and sometimes doesn't, then proceeded to wipe out the Braves with eight overtime points as the Bulls stretched their winning streak to a team-record nine games.

In regulation play, Love had scored only three points.

Phil Chenier and Mike Riordan scored 25 points each to pace Capital to its fifth victory in six games at the expense of Phoenix, now 2-10. It was the fourth straight game in which Capitals' opponents have been held to less than 100 points.



SANDWICHED — National Basketball Association action can sometimes be rugged as Cleveland's Lenny Wilkens found out last night in Cleveland. He was caught between Atlanta's Jim Washington and Lou Hudson (right) while trying to grab a loose ball during the first half. Wilken was fouled on the play in Atlanta's 115-110 victory. Ailing Tennis Star Newcombe Triumphs

SYDNEY (UPI) — John Newcombe, suffering from a stomach disorder, defeated fellow Australian John Alexander 6-3, 4-6, 6-4 today in an opening round in the First Australian Indoor Tennis Championship.

The former Wimbledon champion is the top seed for this $50,000 tournament restricted to men only.

Newcombe had three break points in the final set when he was trailing 2 to 1 and another at 3-4 but his experience carried him through into the second round.

It was not a successful day for the opening of Australia's first indoor tennis tournament because of the small crowd of less than 100 people, and many of the top overseas players did not arrive in time to play first round matches.

There was a little more trouble during the night matches when Australian Davis Cup member Bob Giltinan sent the net crashing to the ground at a vital stage in his match against Ken Rosewall.

Rosewall had won the first set 6-1 and was five games all in the second set with Giltinan leading 40-30 on his own serve.

There was a break of 15 minutes while the new net was erected and in that time Rosewall regained his composure and took the two games for the match.

Earlier in the day American Sherwood Stewart received a forfeit from Mexican Marcelo Lara, who had to retire after leading 6-2 and 2-0 in the second set with stomach trouble.

New Zealander Jeff Simpson qualified for the second round by beating Australian Dick Crealy 7-6, 7-5.

O'Hara, Frentzel Spark Hockey Win

Tim O'Hara and David Frentzel each scored three goals yesterday to lead the Marin Amateur Hockey Club bantams to a 9-3 victory over Stockton at Raydine's Ice Rink in Corte Madera.

Marin's other four Northern California Amateur Hockey League teams lost over the weekend. Host Eastridge defeated the mites, 19-0, and the squirts, 13-0. Visiting Belmont topped the squirt "B" team, 9-0, and visiting Stockton edged the pee wees, 3-2.

Terra Linda In Ninth Straight Soccer Triumph

League leading Terra Linda High School won its ninth consecutive soccer game Saturday night, subduing San Rafael, 3-0, before about 150 fans at San Rafael.

Mark McCarthy, Bob Vaupen and Dave Koel scored goals for the Trojans (9-1), who hold a three-game lead over Redwood (6-4) with four games left in the Marin County Athletic League season.

The shutout was the Trojans' third in four games and fifth of the year. Terra Linda has allowed more than one goal only twice in league play, and those were the first two games of the season.

West Valley Flogs Tars In Football

SAN JOSE — "We just didn't play football at all," said downcast College of Marin coach Dick Read. "Maybe we weren't prepared. We just didn't block and tackle."

The object of Read's dismay was a 49-13 beating administered his Tars by West Valley College Saturday at Leigh High School here. The loss dropped Marin to 2-3 in the Camino Norte Conference and 3-4 overall, while the Vikings' records rose to 3-1 and 3-5.

West Valley rolled to 346 yards on the ground and another 192 through the air. Marin's Mike Sanderson passed for 182 yards and two touchdowns, completing 14 of 39, but the runners could manage only 49 yards.

West Valley piled up a quick 20-0 lead before Marin could score in the second quarter on a 49-yard pass from Sanderson to Duke Bessee. Sanderson hit Bessee for a five-yard score in the fourth quarter, but a 23-point third period by West Valley had made the outcome academic by then.

John Buckley caught six passes for 54 yards for Marin, Bessee had four grabs for 79 yards and Pete Ray four for 28.

Marin Tar Harriers 2nd In League Meet

SAN MATEO — College of Marin's cross country team finished second in the Camino Norte Conference meet Saturday, failing to overtake victorious West Valley College by a scant two points.

"We were unhappy with the result, but we were pleased with our effort," said Marin coach Tony Bailey after his team scored 53 points to West Valley's 51.

The Tars' Pete Sweeney was second individually in 21:04 over the 4.2-mile course near Crystal Springs Reservoir, and Mike Killeen was fifth in 21:29.

Other Marin scorers were Dan Turek, 14th in 22:03; Kian McCarthy, 17th in 22:13, and John Ladd, 18th in 22:16. The Tars' other entrants placed relatively high in the 70-man field, with Eric Moller 20th in 22:20, Brian Woodhouse 27th in 22:37 and John Streett 29th in 22:45.

West Valley's Matt Sommer was the individual winner in 20:44, and other Vikings were third, 11th, 15th and 24th.

San Marin Tops Marin Catholic

By DAVE DEL GRANDE

The San Marin High School Mustangs, led by a tenacious defense, halted the Marin Catholic High School football win streak at three Saturday by downing the Wildcats, 20-7, before 1,000 fans in Greenbrae.

"Our defense was really the key today," declared San Marin head coach Bob Martin. "They all played extremely well especially (defensive tackle) Roger Brewster and (safety) Michael Bachowski." The Mustang defense held the 'Cats to one net yard rushing and just 22 total net yards in the second half.

The Mustangs scored first when, on the first play after a Marin Catholic-fumbled punt return, tailback Dave Azevedo streaked 14 yards into the end zone on an off-tackle play. Azevedo started at tailback due to the leg injury of starter Wayne Roche.

With San Marin, now 5-3, ahead, 10-0, in the second quarter, the Wildcats (3-3-1) sustained a 72-yard drive in 15 plays which ended in a touchdown. The score came when Wildcat fullback Jeff Reusche fumbled at the oal line and halfback Mark Schoenstein recovered in the end zone.

Seemingly stung by the score, the Mustangs took the ball 52 yards in three plays as the first half ended. The final play of the drive was a 35-yard pass from quarterback David Harder to split end Greg Pater.

The 17-7 halftime score set the stage for the Mustangs' second half defense stand. The only score of the second half was a 24 yard field goal by San Marin's George Saunders who had earlier kicked one of 43 yards.

Gaylord's Spitball Trend

By JOE SARGIS

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Should the spitball be legalized?

That's a question baseball people and fans alike have been pondering for quite some time, especially during the last two seasons when "illegal" pitches have almost become the standard rather than the exception.

Way back in 1920, baseball declared the spitter, greaser, emery ball etc., all pitches made with a foreign substance on the ball, illegal. But in banning the pitch, starting with the 1921 season, baseball permitted pitchers "addicted to the spitter," which it said were only a few, to continue as in the past. That made Burleigh Grimes and Clarence Mitchell the so-called last of the spitball pitchers.

In all the years since those two retired only one pitcher of note—Preacher Roe of the old Brooklyn Dodgers —ever was accused of throwing the spitter, that is until Gaylord Perry came along to start what looks like a trend these days. While some complained about Roe loading up the ball, no one ever caught him at it, and had he not admitted as much shortly after his retirement in 1954, maybe no one would know for sure even at this late date.

But along came Perry, a tall righthander with a good fastball in the early 1960s, to start changing things around. Perry, then with the San Francisco Giants and now with the Cleveland Indians, was a so-so pitcher until he developed what he calls his "hard slider" in 1966.

Perry won 21 games for the Giants in 1966 and except for a lapse the next two seasons, he's been one of the best pitchers in baseball ever since, reaching the peak of his profession by winning the Cy Young Award in 1972 after a 24-16 record with Cleveland.

While still in the National League, Perry often was subjected to such indignities as being stripped of his hat and shirt on the mound by suspicious umpires. They never once caught him "loading up" the ball but the suspicion remained. If anything, the situation became even more ridiculous when he switched over to the Indians.

"I don't mind them looking me over," Perry often would say with a mischievous grin. "If they think I'm doing something, they have a right to inspect my person."

The cry over Perry's spitter has grown louder and louder over the years and reached a point of ridiculousness last Aug. 31, when in a game against Detroit, then Tiger manager Billy Martin "ordered" his two pitchers —Joe Coleman and Fred Scherman —to retaliate by throwing spitters at the Indians. Perry laughed and the umpires fumed. The next day Martin was slapped down by American League president Joe Cronin and eventually lost his job with the Tigers.

Perry, by no means is baseball's only "spitter" these days. According to players interviewed from both leagues, such others as Scherman, Jim Merritt, Bill Lee, Bill Singer, Dave Sells and Steve Barber in the American and Doc Ellis, Ramon Hernandez, Bob Moose, Clay Kirby and Juan Pizarro in the National are "addicted" to the illegal pitch.

"They are making a joke of baseball," says Reggie Jackson, the 1973 World Series Most Valuable Player who hit 32 homers and drove in 117 runs for the World Champion Oakland A's.

"You've got a good start on the guys who load it up in the American League," he continued, "but I guarantee you there are more. Look, I'm not looking for them to legalize the pitch but they should either enforce the rules or forget them altogether. The way it is now is a joke. I feel sorriest for the poor umpires. They have a tough enough job without all this stuff going on."

Tito Fuentes of the Giants, a man who plays every day, says things aren't as bad in the National League "because the umpires don't let them get away with it."

"I've seen a few spitters this year," says Tito, "but never more than two or three in any one game. The umpires are doing a good job."

A week ago, at the conclusion of the general managers' meeting in Scottsdale, Ariz., Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who claims he has no feelings one way or the other about the illegal pitch, said he has asked the baseball Rules Committee to discuss legalizing the pitch at the annual meetings in Houston in December.

Warriors Are Back With Modest Streak

OAKLAND (UPI) —The Golden State Warriors come home with a modest two-game win streak as they prepare for Thursday's game against Chicago at the Coliseum.

Rick Barry led the squad to two victories over the weekend, a 124-121 overtime win at Buffalo Saturday and a 92-91 triumph yesterday over the Kansas-City Omaha Kings.

Barry scored 26 points against the Kings and 36 against the Braves. Barry's corner shot with 20 seconds to go saved the game for the Warriors Sunday night.

Jeff Mullins added 16 for Golden State against the Kings. The win over the Braves snapped a two-game losing skid for the Warriors.

"We played like a veteran team with poise and came back," said coach Al Attles. "That really made me happy."

Southern Cal, Stanford Face Big Football Test

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Now comes the big test for Southern California and Stanford.

With UCLA running wild and apparently unstoppable, the Trojans and Cardinals are on the spot this Saturday in what's left of the Pacific 8 Conference race.

One or the other will go on to challenge the high-scoring Bruins after Saturday's big match in Los Angeles.

With the Wishbone grinding out the scores at will, the Bruins whipped Washington, 62-13, last Saturday while Southern California, bouncing back nicely after its only defeat of the season, steamrollered California, 50-14.

That left the two Los Angeles giants in a tie for the Pac 8 lead with matching 4-0 records. Stanford, needing a late game field goal from reliable Rod Garcia, edged Oregon State, 24-23, and now is 3-1.

Thus, while USC and Stanford are locking horns this Saturday, UCLA will be in Eugene to tangle with the Oregon Ducks, who lost out in the Pac 8 race by dropping a 21-14 decision to Washington State.

Of the three contenders for the league title Stanford would seem to have the toughest schedule remaining. After USC, the Cards face Oregon and California.

USC plays Washington after Stanford while UCLA meets Oregon State. Then the two hometown rivals clash in what could be the deciding game on Nov. 24.

The running of Anthony Davis and Rod McNeill made the difference in USC's victory over California. Davis, held to only 55 yards the week before by Notre Dame, churned out 106. in 26 carries against the Bears and scored five of his team's seven touchdowns. One score came on an electrifying 80-yard kickoff return on the final play of the game. He got his other four scores on short runs.

McNeill, who always seemed to be off the field when the Trojans were in position to score, picked up 164 yards in 24 carries while backup tailback Allen Carter added 90 yards in 10 attempts.

Kermit Johnson scored two of UCLA's early TDs and reserve freshman halfback Wendall Tyler added three TDs in the final quarter as the Bruins rolled to their seventh straight victory since a season-opening loss to Nebraska.

It was Washington's seventh loss in eight games but Huskies officials said coach Jim Owens' job isn't in jeopardy. This year more than likely will wind up as the worst season for Washington since Owens led the Huskies to three Rose Bowl appearances in the glory years of the late 1950s and early 1960s.

Stanford came from behind twice on a rainy afternoon at Corvallis to beat OSU.

The Pacific Coast Athletic Association race remained undecided as San Diego State and San Jose State battled to a 27-27 standoff. Denny Richardo's 35-yard field goal with two seconds left enabled the Aztecs to gain the tie.

MARIN SCHEDULE

Champions will be crowned in two sports and possibly in two others this week as the Marin County Athletic League approaches the end of its fall sports schedule.

Tomorrow's cross country meet at San Marin High School features title showdowns between visitors Redwood and San Rafael in boys, girls and freshman-sophomore competition.

Redwood's once-beaten varsity and frosh-soph teams need victories to tie San Rafael's unbeaten teams for the championship. Redwood's once-beaten girls team needs to win to tie Tamalpais.

In water polo, undefeated Redwood (11-0) has already clinched a co-championship, but five-time defending champion Terra Linda can tie for the title by beating San Rafael Tuesday and the Giants in the season finale Friday.

Redwood's football team can clinch at least a second straight co-championship by beating Drake Saturday.

Terra Linda's soccer team (9-1) can assure itself of the title by winning twice, regardless of what second-place Redwood (6-4) does. The Trojans play Drake Tuesday and Tamalpais Friday.

The MCAL cross country meet will be held Saturday at Bon Tempe Lake.

Petaluma Football Tops Sked

Petaluma High School's undefeated football team can clinch at least a tie for its second consecutive North Bay League championship Friday night at 8 o'clock with a victory over Hogan High School in Vallejo.

The Trojans (5-0) hold a one-game edge over Vallejo (4-1), and a victory coupled with an Apache defeat to Ukiah High School, would give Petaluma the title outright.

Hogan (3-1) is still mathematically in the race, however, standing in a three-way tie for third place with Napa and Ukiah.

Tomales (4-0) can clinch its second straight North Central League II football title Saturday at 2 p.m. with a victory over visiting Calistoga (2-2).

St. Vincent of Petaluma (3-1) can gain a tie for the crown with a victory over visiting Kelseyville Saturday at 8 p.m. and an upset by Calistoga.

PRO FOOTBALL ROUNDUP

Falcons' Lee Likes Thinking T.D.

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Bob Lee likes to think touchdown but yesterday he was more than happy to settle for field goals.

The Atlanta Falcons got five of them from rookie Nick Mike-Mayer — the final one a 16-yarder with 52 seconds left—and that gave the surprising Atlanta club a 15-13 upset victory over the Los Angeles Rams, who blew a 10-0 lead.

Lee, who's led the Falcons to four straight wins since he took over from Dick Shiner as the team's starting quarterback, claims, "if you think field goals, you set your sights too low."

But Lee settled for field goals of 28, 30, 12 and 26 yards by Mike-Mayer before his deciding one in the final minute.

When the Falcons, trailing 13-12, took over on their own 46 with 5:05 left to play, Lee said someone in the huddle said, 'okay, let's set up that field goal.' I said, 'think touchdown.'

He then added, "of course, once we got within field goal range, we had to go with our sure thing—inside running—but we were getting yardage with it."

Atlanta, 5-3, is now only a game behind the Rams, who are 6-2, in the National Football Conference West. And Atlanta is tied with Dallas for the best runnerup record in the fight for the wild card playoff spot.

Surprisingly, the Falcons' closest challenger is New Orleans, which evened its mark at 4-4 with the first shutout in the history of the club. The Saints stunned Buffalo while holding O.J. Simpson to 79 yards. It was a costly loss for Buffalo, which fell two games behind Miami at 5-3 even though the Bills still have the best wild card record.

There weren't really many more surprises although Houston snapped an 18-game losing string by beating Baltimore 31-27 and Green Bay and San Francisco, playoff teams last year, continued to disappoint their fans by suffering lopsided losses.

Five leading playoff contenders — unbeaten Minnesota, Miami, Oakland, Dallas and Kansas City—recorded victories and two others—Washington and Pittsburgh—collide tonight in the TV special at 6 o'clock.

In yesterday's action, Chicago routed Green Bay 31-17, Detroit whipped San Francisco 30-20, Minnesota blasted Cleveland 26-3, Miami topped the New York Jets 24-14, Oakland trounced the New York Giants 42-0, Dallas routed Cincinnati 38-10, Kansas City blanked San Diego 19-0, Denver tied St. Louis 17-17 and Philadelphia edged New England 24-23.

Los Angeles jumped out to a 10-0 lead over Atlanta but the Atlanta defense, which allowed John Hadl to complete only six of 19 passes, then stiffened. Lee hit on 19 of 31 for the Falcons.

Simpson, trying to break Jimmy Brown's season rushing mark, never got rolling against a New Orleans defense that held Larry Brown and Charley Harraway to 24 yards last week. The Saints even stopped Simpson on a fourth-and-one play on the New Orleans 11 and O.J. didn't even play the last three times New Orleans had the ball.

The Minnesota defense held an opposing team without a touchdown for the fourth time this year while boosting their record to 8-0. The Vikes are almost half way to the 17-0 mark rung up by Miami last year. Four Fred Cox field goals, a Fran Tarkenton touchdown pass and an Oscar Reed TD run were all the Vikings needed.

Bob Griese's 37-yard touchdown pass to Paul Warfield in the third period snapped a 14-14 deadlock and Miami went on to down the N.Y. Jets. Mercury Morris scored twice for Miami and John Riggins did the same thing for the Jets.

Lee Roy Jordan intercepted three Ken Anderson passes in less than five minutes in the first period and Dallas was on its way to the easy victory over Cincinnati. Roger Staubach hit on 14 of 18 passes for the Cowboys.

Oft-maligned Bobby Douglass scored four touchdowns, passed for 118 yards and rushed for 100 to pace Chicago to the triumph over Green Bay. The Packers were held to just seven yards in the second half.

San Diego couldn't penetrate's Kansas City's 39 until the final minute of the game as the Chiefs coasted to an easy win. Mike Livingston, starting for the injured Lenny Dawson, threw a 39-yard touchdown pass for the Chiefs.

Lynn Dickey's 13-yard touchdown pass to Fred Willis with 32 seconds left lifted Houston to the triumph over Baltimore.

In the other two games, Tom Dempsey's 12-yard field goal with 35 seconds left lifted Philadelphia over New England and Jim Turner's 12-yard field goal with one second left gave Denver a tie with St. Louis as the Broncos spurned a gamble for the win on a fourth down at the five.

Sonoma 5th In Cross Country

HAYWARD — Sonoma State College made its best showing in the Far Western Conference Cross-Country championships here Saturday with a fifth-place finish.

Chico State took first with 46 points, followed by University of California, Davis (48), Humboldt State (57), Sacramento State (102), Sonoma (135), Hayward State (164) and San Francisco State (178).

Bob Bunnell led the Cossack Harriers with a 20th-place finish and teammates Steve Slawson and Butch Alexander came in 25th and 26th.

Johncock Salvaging Pride After Lean Racing Years

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Gordon Johncock's first 15 years in auto racing were lean ones.

So lean that he declared himself bankrupt last March and placed his troubled finances in the hands of a judge.

Then he struck it rich — so rich that, at 37, he can begin working on a couple of other things. Like salvaging some of the pride he admits he lost along a rocky road that has made him one of America's premier race drivers.

Johncock won a sizzling 150-mile race for Indianapolis cars at FasTrack International Speedway Saturday, ran his season's winnings to $279,489 — of which he will keep close to $150,000 — and said later, "hope I have proved a point or two since Indianapolis in May."

The Michigan native, a short, stocky blonde, twice wed and about to do it again, won the tragic Indy race under a yellow flag brought about by rain. He was leading when the survivors were waved off the track after 332.5 miles.

A teammate, Swede Savage, had been hospitalized with massive injuries that claimed his life a month later.

"Some people said after Indy I wouldn't have won it under normal racing conditions," Johncock recalled Saturday. "All I could say to them was that I would have liked to have won it under full facing conditions. I still believe I could have."

Johncock had been classed as a journeyman driver before Indy, one who could be expected to do a good job with any car, but lacking the finesse, the flare of, say, a Mario Andretti. He had won only seven events in almost 10 years.

But Indianapolis made him a celebrity, and the money enabled him to buy a new home in Phoenix, where he settled earlier this year.

Johncock won the pole position for the Arizona 150 with a one-mile clocking of 142.631 miles per hour, a track record. He led the race three times for a total of 71 laps, and charged across the finish line with teammate Wally Dallenbach on his tailpipe, four seconds behind.

Johncock, whose race speed was 115.016 m.p.h., despite five yellow light slowdowns, received $11,423 for the victory.

Dallenbach, the East Brunswick, N.J., housebuilder, added $6,816 to the $154,630 he had already won this year.

Third place went to Billy Vukovich, fourth to Roger McCluskey and fifth to Lee Kunzman. McCluskey, of Tucson, already had clinched the 1973 driving title for the Indianapolis-based circuit and ended the season with prize money totaling $170,645.

The race had to be halted for 45 minutes after Bobby Unser's car disintegrated against the backstretch guard rail, sending him to a hospital with broken ribs.

PREP GRID ROUNDUP

Rancho Shellacks Healdsburg, 42-0

By PAUL DWORIN

Healdsburg High School held the vaunted Rancho Cotate High School offense to just seven points in the second half of Saturday afternoon's Sonoma County League football clash in Rohnert Park. Unfortunately for Healdsburg, though, the Cougars scored 35-first half points to bury the Greyhounds, 42-0.

In other area high school grid games Saturday, Tomales clinched at least a tie for its second straight North Central League II title with a 20-6 victory over host Kelseyville, St. Vincent of Petaluma kept its hopes alive for a share of the NCL II crown by beating host Upper Lake, 20-0, and Casa Grande of Petaluma won its first game from a future SCL opponent with a 39-0 drubbing of visiting Analy of Sebastopol.

Rancho Cotate struck early with a 70-yard interception return for a touchdown by Chris Callinan. After Callinan put the Cougars on the board, Bob Haas connected with Brad Harris for three scores on pass plays covering 30, 42 and 12 yards.

Tomales clinched a title tie on the running of junior back Sam Marsi, who scored two first-half touchdowns on runs of 10 and 20 yards. Ed Albini added a score in the third quarter for the Braves.

Despite playing much of the game with reserves, St. Vincent amassed 310 yards in its whitewash of Upper Lake while allowing the Cougars just 90 yards.

Casa Grande doesn't officially enter the SCL until next year, but proved it will be competitive with the win over Analy. Tom Davini led the Gauchos with two touchdowns on runs of two and five yards.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Look Is Taken At Five Firms

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. May I please have your opinion of the following stocks: Storer Broadcasting (NYSE), Apeco (NYSE), British Petroleum (NYSE), Continental Air Lines (NYSE) and Moviematic Industries (National Stock Exchange). — C.O.

A. Of these five issues, two appear to have good long-term potential. British Petroleum is being hurt by the increasingly larger bites being taken by Middle East countries which provide most of BP's crude production. Offsetting this is the company's stake in Alaska's North Slope through a 25 per cent equity interest in Standard Oil of Ohio plus its holdings in the North Sea. By virtue of Storer's holdings in Delta Air Lines each SBK share is backed by over $7 worth of Delta stock. The company is doing well in its CATV operations in Florida although radio broadcasting revenues fell off. Boston Gardens-Arena and the Bruins and Braves hockey teams, acquired in July, should pay off long term. In any event, the shares, selling at a low multiple, are worth holding.

Moviematic, selling at under 50 cents, is of minimal interest. Apeco has reached a stalemate in its pending merger with Van Dyk Research. A deficit was reported in the September quarter despite an 18 per cent increase in sales. Apeco competes with large corporations in its production of photocopy machines, mobile homes and small computers. Since recovery appears to be some distance away, shares are not attractive at this time.

Continental's earnings will probably drop sharply this year reflecting discontinued military business, a slowdown in passenger traffic and a sharp jump in expenses. A boost in fares to Hawaii was granted by the CAB in September and application for higher domestic fares has been made. The former was granted too late to benefit third-quarter earnings, while the latter request will probably not be approved before the first of the year. Dividends, which were discontinued in 1970, are not expected to be resumed in the near future. Currently this issue is of limited investor interest.

ALL-NEW TOYOTA

The 1974 Toyota Corona SR exemplifies Toyota's move to a second generation of small cars. Toyota's new concept in automotive engineering stresses styling, safety, emission control, improved drivability and luxury. A unique feature of the Corona SR and two-door hardtop is the Electro Sensor Panel, which monitors 11 major mechanical functions. The SR also includes a standard five-speed manual transmission, AM-FM radio, wide radial tires, tachometer and styled steel wheels. Marin dealers are Dexter Toyota in San Rafael and Novato Toyota.

Stocks Fall Sharply Across Broad Front

NEW YORK (UPI) —Stocks tumbled across a broad front today on the New York Stock Exchange amid new calls for President Nixon's resignation, a threatened renewal of the Middle East fighting, and an impending energy shortage.

Trading was active.

The trading atmosphere has taken a distinct turn for the worse in the last week, according to observers. Investors are faced with a number of serious crises, they said. Among them are calls for President Nixon's resignation or impeachment, even from his friends in the press, threats from the Arabs of renewed fighting in the Middle East, and the widespread ramifications of a worldwide fuel shortage in the offing.

Monsanto (ex-dividend) led the actives, off 2 at 59 on 79,000 shares. The chemical group has slid in recent sessions. Dupont, Eastman Kodak, Dow and Union Carbide each lost a point or more. Chemical firms rely on petroleum for many products.

On the American Stock Exchange, prices fell sharply in moderate trading. Leading the actives, TWA warrants dropped ⅜ to 2 ½ on volume of 53,700.

Turnabout In Marin Home Sales

Marin County homes, which were being gobbled up by eager buyers as late as last June, are now going unsold in a dramatic reversal caused by tight money, according to Jeffory Morshead of Frank Howard Allen & Co. Realtors.

"We are in a buyer's market with unsold homes building up and a scarcity of buyers," Morshead declares in his "Marin County Real Estate Newsletter".

He gives this comparison of homes sales in 1972 and 1973: First quarter sales this year were up 20 per cent, second quarter sales were up 3 per cent, but third quarter sales dropped 11 per cent as compared with last year. "September was the largest decline yet, off 31 per cent before inflation compared with September, 1972."

Despite the sluggish sales, Morshead predicts that prices of homes in Marin will continue to soar because of the county's "no growth" policy.

Proposition E on the Nov. 6 ballot, the $7,560,000 water bond issue, appears doomed, says Morshead. "With its defeat will come the extension of the water moratorium.

"We are predicting a doubling in six to nine years in prices received for well located luxury homes in Marin!"

Morshead says that buying opportunities still exist despite the present tight money. "The typical buyer reasons either that he cannot afford to give up his present 6 per cent or 7 per cent loan for a 9 per cent loan or that he should wait for lower rates. But in deciding to wait until things are better, he is going to find less homes to choose from at prices 10 to 15 per cent higher . . ."

Martha Predicts Nixon Will Be Gone By Spring

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Predicting that President Nixon will leave office by springtime, Martha Mitchell says "everybody in the country" is against him.

As for herself, she has been "through the throes of hell" since her husband, former Attorney General John N. Mitchell came to Washington to serve Nixon.

In a Saturday night telephone call to UPI reporter Helen Thomas, Mrs. Mitchell said she made her assessment of Nixon's future after talking with people "down in Washington" and staying "in touch with the country."

"I'll give him 'til April at the latest," she said from her New York City apartment. "He's going to be kicked out."

"People know that he cannot reign as President," she said. "Everybody in the country is against him."

At one point, she said in a trembling voice that she had "worked so hard for that man to get him elected, it makes me cry to think what has happened. I really did have faith in him," she added.

Mrs. Mitchell said she has not seen her husband since he moved out of their apartment Sept. 11.

Asked if there were any chance her marriage would last, she replied: "I don't want it to. You don't know what I've been through for four and a half years...I've been through the throes of hell.".

She quickly added, however, "Don't worry about Martha, she'll get along."

Mrs. Mitchell said that her husband, who is under indictment in a New York securities fraud case and a target of the Watergate grand jury, is "depending on the President staying in the White House. ...John Mitchell is leaning on the last element he's got."

Cartoonist Injured In Weird Crash

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (UPI) —Syndicated editorial cartoonist Bill Mauldin, stretched out on a hospital bed because of back injuries suffered in an auto accident with two police cars, looked up momentarily and said "I understand the fugitive got away."

He shook his head and said the whole affair was the "usual heavy-footed incompetence" displayed by police chasing a suspect.

"I feel like I've been kicked in the back by a mule—which is exactly what happened," Mauldin said. "We were mousetrapped. One police car was caroming alongside us in the dirt and another police car rammed us from the rear."

The incident began Saturday night when police were called to investigate a family trouble call. When officer Charles Swanberg arrived the man allegedly causing the disturbance had left and, according to witnesses, was drunk and was carrying drugs.

Swanberg spotted the car he was looking for and chased it at speeds over 100 miles an hour along an interstate highway. Another officer Johnny Elms, joined the chase.

Mauldin had just arrived from Phoenix and his wife and son met him with the family's small station wagon at the airport for the drive to their home in Santa Fe, N.M. Mauldin lives in Santa Fe and commutes to work to Chicago during the week.

An Air Force family, towing a trailer toward a new duty assignment in Aurora, Colo., also happened to be on the road.

Mauldin and the Air Force motorist saw the flashing police lights in the rear view mirrors and pulled to the side of the road. But the suspect's car ran off the road, spun into the dirt and hit a fence.

A third police car, ahead of the first two, slowed down and the cars driven by Swanberg and Elms crashed into the rear of the cars driven by Mauldin and the Air Force man.

"The oncoming officers tried to stop but they couldn't see anything," Officer Meliton Otero said. "That is when they struck the other two cars that were stopped."

Otero confirmed the suspect escaped.

"In the dirt, the wreck and confusion and all, he had it made," the accident investigator said.

Probation In Marijuana Case

Two years on probation, rather than prosecution on a marijuana possession charge, has been ordered for Steven Robert Zaffron, 29, of Homestead Valley.

Judge David R. Baty of Marin Municipal Court acted on the basis of a state law giving first-time drug offenders a second chance.

San Rafael police arrested Zaffron Oct. 3 following a four-car accident on Second Street. Officers said a witness told them Zaffron, whose car hit three parked autos, tossed away a kilo of marijuana.
